COLUMBIA AHEAD IN THE YACHT RACE

New York, Oct. 1.—(Special)—Weather conditions at Sandy Hook this morning favored a good yacht race between the Columbia and the Shamrock II. The only anxiety was lest the wind might die down during the middle of the day so much that the boats could not complete the course in time to count as a race.

At 10:20 the wind was 11 knots from the northeast. The start, unofficial time, was made at 11:05. The Columbia had much the better of her rival at the start, being considerably to the windward. She got away in lowing opinions were handed down by the circuit court yesterday afternoon:

O. H. Bates, executor of Christian K. Betz, vs. Nora Dubbs; decision of lower court affirmed.

J. Frank Adams, auditor, vs. Ohio on rel Richard Cole, error; decision of lower court reversed.

Circuit court adjourned last evening and the judges left for Painesville.

SUITS TO RECOVER

J. W. Reilly Asks Judgment for $1,009 Against Mattie J. Daniel.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—(Special)—James W. Reilly has filed suit in common pleas court against Mattie J. Daniel, of Wellsville, to recover $1,009 on promissory notes. The petition asks that a mortgage on defendant's property given to secure the amount be foreclosed.

Solomon Culp has brought suit in common pleas court against Anna M. and Frank Lennig, of Columbiana, asking a judgment of $135 for materials furnished and services rendered in the construction of a house.

PROBATE COURT

Will of John Mueller Filed—Lot Sale Confirmed.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—(Special)—The will of the late John Mueller, of Knox township, has been filed for probate. One-quarter of his estate is left to his wife in lieu of dower and the remainder is to be divided equally among the five children. B. F. Roose is named as executor.

Judge Boone has confirmed the sale by the board of directors of the county infirmary of a lot in Damascus belonging to Hannah Votaw, an inmate of the infirmary.

CUPID WAS BUSY

Kept a Long Distance Ahead of Divorce Courts Last Month.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—(Special)—Sixty-three marriage licenses were issued from the probate court office during September. This is considered a very good record. During the same time three divorces were applied for in common pleas court.

ON A STREET CAR

DANIEL WHITE BECAME UNRULY AND WAS ARRESTED.

Mayor Davidson Fined the Man $2 And Costs, Which He Couldn't Pay.

Daniel White was the only culprit to appear before Mayor Davidson this morning. He was arrested late last night by Special Officer Salsbery and locked up on the charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

The trouble which caused White's arrest took place on a street car at the Walker switch. The men in charge of the car stated in the mayor's court this morning that White insulted a Wellsville woman, who was among the passengers, who retaliated by reaching out after the young man and planted a stiff upper cut on his jaw.

White then became enraged and wanted to clean up everybody with his fists. After a fruitless attempt to quiet him the conductor in charge of the car turned White over to the officer, who promptly placed the unruly young man behind the jail bars. He admitted to the mayor that he had been a "bad actor," whereupon a fine of $2 and costs was assessed on him. He is now in jail looking for a friend to oblige him with a loan sufficient to procure his liberty.

HOME TEAM LOST THE FIRST GAME

Football Enthusiasts Witnessed an Interesting Contest at West End Park.

THE SCORE STOOD 16 TO 0

Cathedral Lyceum Team, of Pittsburg, Put Up Too Stiff a Game for the Nationals—Many Long Runs Were Made.

In a well played game of foot ball, consisting of two 20-minute halves, the Cathedral Lyceum team, of Pittsburg, defeated the home team at the West End park yesterday afternoon by the score of 16 to 0.

It was the opening of the season in this city and a large crowd was present to cheer the home boys on to victory, but fate was against them and the visitors won with apparent ease. Before the game was very old it was evident that the weight and superior team work of the visitors would add another to their already long string of victories.

The Cathedral Lyceum team have not been defeated for two years, and but few teams have been able to score against them in that time. The home team, considering their weight and the short time which they have been in practice, played a remarkable good game, better than was expected before the game started, as their line was considerable lighter than that of the visitors, and their team work was not as good.

However, a decided improvement will be made in the home team before the next game, as at least five new players will be in condition and ready by that time. The back field of the home team was remarkably strong, and was far superior to that of the visitors. They did the principal part of the work of the home team, especially on the defensive. Captain Barker, of the visitors, won the toss and chose the ball, giving the home team the east goal to defend.

Brassel kicked off to Booth, who brought the ball back 10 yards before he was stopped. Moore hit right tackle for three yards and Booth gained one yard at the left side of the line. On the third down Moore failed to gain and the ball went to the visitors. McInery circled left end for a gain of seven yards and Quinlan made two yards through left tackle. Brassel hit the center for five yards on the next try. Quinlan fumbled the ball. Holtz fell on it and it was Liverpool's ball on their own 10-yard line. Booth made six yards at left end and Moore went through right tackle for a gain of five more. Pope made three yards through the same place, but Little failed to gain on a run around left end. Little again tried left end and made three yards. Booth went through right tackle for four yards, but on the next pass Moore fumbled the ball and it went to the visitors.

Riley made 10 yards. Brassel went around right end for 20 yards. Quinlan hit the center for no gain. Quinlan made seven yards through right tackle and Brassel went around right end for the first touchdown. Barker failed to kick goal. Score 5 to 0.

Pope kicked off and York downed Barker before he could move. Hurney made five yards through right tackle, but failed to gain on a second attempt at the same place. Brassel went through the center for five yards. On the next pass Moore downed McInery back of the line for a loss of three yards. Hurney circled right end for six yards and Brassel made three more through left tackle. Booth downed Quinlan back of the line for a loss of two yards. Brassel hit right tackle for seven and Moore tackled McMahon back of the line for a loss of two yards.

Brassel made seven yards around right end and McKeever made five more around the other end. Brassel punted to Pope, who was downed in his tracks by Donnelly. Moore gained three yards. Little fumbled the ball and it went to the visitors. A series of end runs took the ball to the center of the field, when time for the first half was called.

When the second half began Kinney took the place of J. Bucher at right tackle on the home team, and Murphy took the place of Brassel at fullback for the visitors. On the kick-off Pope sent the ball out of bounds past the goal posts, and it was brought back for the second attempt. The second punt went to Barker, who was downed by Little. Hurney made seven

BIG ADDITION TO UNION PLANT

Fifteen Thousand Dollars to Be Expended, Improving the Pottery.

TO ADD TWO NEW KILNS

New Building Also to Be Erected as Warehouse And Clay Shops—Capacity of the Plant Will Be Largely Increased.

Extensive improvements are to be made at the Union pottery, the local plant of the Union Pottery company, owning and operating a number of factories throughout this district.

During the temporary shut down, and while the concern was in the hands of a receiver the equipment was permitted to become neglected, and consequently when it was started several weeks ago it was necessary to make a few repairs before it could even be run at its present capacity.

The plant is a four kiln affair, engaged in the manufacture of white granite, and the company operating it has determined to add to its capacity in the very near future.

It is said that $15,000 has been placed at the command of the local management with which to make the proposed improvements. It is the intention to add two kilns at a cost of about $7,000, which will greatly increase the working force in the clay departments. The remainder of the $15,000 will be expended in the erection of a new building to be devoted to warehouses and clay shops. If the present plans are carried out the Union pottery will, when the work is completed, be one of the best equipped and most conveniently arranged plants in this section.

Under the efficient management of Robert Hawkins and the various department foremen, the pottery has prospered even beyond the fondest expectations of its owners, and the contemplated additions are made absolutely necessary by the increasing business which has come to the concern recently.

CRUSHED HIS FOOT

Barrel of Beer Drops, Painfully Injuring Samuel Calhoun.

Samuel Calhoun, driver for A. E. Webber, was so unfortunate yesterday evening as to mash his foot while unloading a barrel of beer.

Calhoun had about finished his day's work and had stopped at the saloon of W. M. Foutts, West Market street, where a barrel was to be delivered. In taking the vessel from the wagon it slipped from his grasp and the edge struck his left foot low on the instep, inflicting a very painful injury. The man was assisted to his home, between East and West Market streets and a physician summoned. Upon examination it was found that no bones were broken, but the injury was none the less painful. It will be some time before he is able to work.

STAG BANQUET

Sons of Veterans Arranging for One of Their Enjoyable Feasts.

At the meeting of the Sons of Veterans this evening final preparations will be made for one of their famous stag banquets. The committee in charge has issued invitations to the newly organized camp at Salem and also to the East Palestine camp, and they have signified their intention of being present.

It is likely that several members of the Cleveland organizations who so royally entertained the visiting Sons at the recent G. A. R. encampment will be in attendance. C. H. A. Palmer, of Cleveland, who will be a candidate for division commander at Lancaster next year, was a member of the entertainment committee and has earned the respect and support of a majority of the boys here.

HIS NOSE BROKEN

A Lively Scrap in Which One of the Combatants Was Used Up.

A lively set-to occurred at the Dresden pottery last evening in which James Thompson, a well known packer, had his nose broken and was otherwise roughly handled.

Thompson had been employed at the pottery as a packer some time

FAMILY DRIVEN TO DESPAIR BY THE WHITECAP OUTRAGES

ago and was discharged. Since that time, it is said, he has passed the word around that he proposed to do up the entire force of packers. Yesterday he went to the Dresden and without much ceremony a workman agreed to take the matter up with Thompson. They adjourned to the opposite side of West Market street to a shed. The fight did not last long, and with a series of counters, upper-cuts and swings Thompson was soon glad to put an end to the controversy.

PROSPECTS GOOD

ACCORDING TO A CROSS-COUNTY RAILWAY PROMOTER.

Only Hitch the Hills in the Southern Part of the County.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—Edward Warson and wife have left for Dayton. Mr. Warson has been in Lisbon several times during the past few months looking after the street railway prospects. He was in and about the city this last time for a week and made a trip over the route from here to Salem and over three proposed routes from here to East Liverpool.

Mr. Warson states that he has the capital back of him to build the line if the southern end of it was as easily built as the line from here to Salem would be. He says that the northern end of the road is easy, but the hills south of Lisbon are hard to get around and the line down Little Beaver creek is not much better. The gentleman does not say that his people are going to build a road, but he does say that the prospects are good in case they can figure the price on the southern end of the road to suit all parties.

Mr. Warson is a man who impresses people as being a man who can be relied upon. A business man said that he had more faith in Warson's backing than all of the other projectors backing. Mr. Warson will return within two weeks to make further investigations.

SETTLED IN FULL

Cash Paid And Dr. Arnum And the Woodmen Are Squared.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—(Special)—Attorney C. C. Connell, of Lisbon, general agent for the Fidelity and Deposit company, of Baltimore, which furnished the bond for Dr. Geo. D. Arnum as an officer of an East Liverpool camp of the Woodmen of the World, stated today that the alleged shortage of Dr. Arnum had been paid in full, including all the costs of the negotiations for settlement.

There will be no prosecution. The amount the doctor was said to be short was $223.12. The cost of settlement was $27.

PETERSON-BEARMAN

Young Couple Married And Will Go to Housekeeping in the East End.

At the home of S. J. Allison, Lincoln avenue, last night the words were spoken uniting the lives and fortunes of Miss Belle Peterson and Mr. George Bearman, two well known young people of this city.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Gladden in the presence of only the intimate friends of the contracting parties. The couple will go to housekeeping at once in the East End.

ODD EXPERIENCE OF CHAS. OSBORNE

Charles Osborne, a local plasterer, arrived yesterday from Alliance, where he had been visiting, and his returning trip was attended with a most peculiar and exciting adventure. Mr. Osborne is well known in this city and very popular among his acquaintances.

Osborne left East Liverpool Saturday night and boarded the early train yesterday morning to return here. Without incident he left Alliance, but on reaching Kensington it became known to him that he was being closely scrutinized by two persons in the same car, who took occasion to approach and question him concerning his identity.

Not having any knowledge of what his questioners were broaching, Osborne "called a turn" and as he is a well built man and a "sandy" one when circumstances demand, he would have without doubt caused some trouble if an explanation had not have

John McPherson Reported Considering the Question of Selling Out.

MORE THREATENING NOTES

Addressed to Members of Families in the Vicinity of Highlandtown.

THE GREAT NERVOUS STRAIN

And Fear That Food or Drink May Be Poisoned Liable to Prove Too Much for the Mother of the Boy Whose Life Was Attempted.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—(Special)—The poisoning of apples on the farm of John H. McPherson, near Highlandtown, which came near ending the life of Sumner McPherson, continues to be the sensation of the county. The young man is still very sick, but it is now thought he will recover. The $100 reward, offered for the arrest of the party or parties who poisoned the apples, remains unclaimed. The McPhersons have strong suspicions, but no proof.

The family is almost driven to despair by the repeated outrages. Mrs. McPherson is afflicted with nervousness, and it is feared the strain will be more than she can bear. Her collapse may be expected at any time.

The orchard where the poisoned apples were found afforded Mr. McPherson a handsome income. Now no one will buy his apples and he is afraid to use them himself or even to feed them to his stock. There is an ever present dread that the water they drink or even their food may be poisoned. Mr. McPherson, it is said, has even considered selling his farm and leaving the community.

A white cap letter was found in the road a few days ago addressed to John Stroudoff, a neighbor of McPherson. It abused and threatened him in the most vicious language. Another similar letter was addressed to John C. Clager, another neighbor. These men are not badly frightened by the threats, though they would feel much easier if the writers of the letters were behind the bars.

JURY WILL TRY CASE

Homer Householder And J. Frank Rowe to Figure in a Legal Battle.

The case in Justice McCarron's court in which Homer Householder is the plaintiff and J. Frank Rowe the defendant, will be tried by a jury. Householder claims the sum of $50 for labor performed. Attorneys have been secured by both parties and the case will be bitterly contested.

Messrs. R. B. Watson, Frank Allen, William Erlanger, George Garnet, Arthur Hill and Charles Fisher will compose the jury.

Only Hitch the Hills in the Southern Part of the County.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—Edward Warson and wife have left for Dayton. Mr. Warson has been in Lisbon several times during the past few months looking after the street railway prospects. He was in and about the city this last time for a week and made a trip over the route from here to Salem and over three proposed routes from here to East Liverpool.

Mr. Warson states that he has the capital back of him to build the line if the southern end of it was as easily built as the line from here to Salem would be. He says that the northern end of the road is easy, but the hills south of Lisbon are hard to get around and the line down Little Beaver creek is not much better. The gentleman does not say that his people are going to build a road, but he does say that the prospects are good in case they can figure the price on the southern end of the road to suit all parties.

Mr. Warson is a man who impresses people as being a man who can be relied upon. A business man said that he had more faith in Warson's backing than all of the other projectors backing. Mr. Warson will return within two weeks to make further investigations.

SETTLED IN FULL

Cash Paid And Dr. Arnum And the Woodmen Are Square.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—(Special)—Attorney C. C. Connell, of Lisbon, general agent for the Fidelity and Deposit company, of Baltimore, which furnished the bond for Dr. Geo. D. Arnum as an officer of an East Liverpool camp of the Woodmen of the World, stated today that the alleged shortage of Dr. Arnum had been paid in full, including all the costs of the negotiations for settlement.

There will be no prosecution. The amount the doctor was said to be short was $223.12. The cost of settlement was $27.

PETERSON-BEARMAN

Young Couple Married And Will Go to Housekeeping in the East End.

At the home of S. J. Allison, Lincoln avenue, last night the words were spoken uniting the lives and fortunes of Miss Belle Peterson and Mr. George Bearman, two well known young people of this city.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Gladden in the presence of only the intimate friends of the contracting parties. The couple will go to housekeeping at once in the East End.

ODD EXPERIENCE OF CHAS. OSBORNE

Charles Osborne, a local plasterer, arrived yesterday from Alliance, where he had been visiting, and his returning trip was attended with a most peculiar and exciting adventure. Mr. Osborne is well known in this city and very popular among his acquaintances.

Osborne left East Liverpool Saturday night and boarded the early train yesterday morning to return here. Without incident he left Alliance, but on reaching Kensington it became known to him that he was being closely scrutinized by two persons in the same car, who took occasion to approach and question him concerning his identity.

Not having any knowledge of what his questioners were broaching, Osborne "called a turn" and as he is a well built man and a "sandy" one when circumstances demand, he would have without doubt caused some trouble if an explanation had not have

John McPherson Reported Considering the Question of Selling Out.

MORE THREATENING NOTES

Addressed to Members of Families in the Vicinity of Highlandtown.

THE GREAT NERVOUS STRAIN

And Fear That Food or Drink May Be Poisoned Liable to Prove Too Much for the Mother of the Boy Whose Life Was Attempted.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—(Special)—The poisoning of apples on the farm of John H. McPherson, near Highlandtown, which came near ending the life of Sumner McPherson, continues to be the sensation of the county. The young man is still very sick, but it is now thought he will recover. The $100 reward, offered for the arrest of the party or parties who poisoned the apples, remains unclaimed. The McPhersons have strong suspicions, but no proof.

The family is almost driven to despair by the repeated outrages. Mrs. McPherson is afflicted with nervousness, and it is feared the strain will be more than she can bear. Her collapse may be expected at any time.

The orchard where the poisoned apples were found afforded Mr. McPherson a handsome income. Now no one will buy his apples and he is afraid to use them himself or even to feed them to his stock. There is an ever present dread that the water they drink or even their food may be poisoned. Mr. McPherson, it is said, has even considered selling his farm and leaving the community.

A white cap letter was found in the road a few days ago addressed to John Stroudoff, a neighbor of McPherson. It abused and threatened him in the most vicious language. Another similar letter was addressed to John C. Clager, another neighbor. These men are not badly frightened by the threats, though they would feel much easier if the writers of the letters were behind the bars.

JURY WILL TRY CASE

Homer Householder And J. Frank Rowe to Figure in a Legal Battle.

The case in Justice McCarron's court in which Homer Householder is the plaintiff and J. Frank Rowe the defendant, will be tried by a jury. Householder claims the sum of $50 for labor performed. Attorneys have been secured by both parties and the case will be bitterly contested.

Messrs. R. B. Watson, Frank Allen, William Erlanger, George Garnet, Arthur Hill and Charles Fisher will compose the jury.

50 YEARS AN INMATE

An Old Resident of the County Infirmary Died Yesterday.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—(Special)—Ellen Williams, aged 76, died yesterday at the county infirmary. She had been there 50 years.

RIPPED FROM JOBS.

Wholesale Decapitation by the
New Officials of Pittsburg.

OVER 100 WERE DISCHARGED.

The Removals Were on the Lines of
the Ripper Bill, Passed by the Last Session of the Pennsylvania Legislature.

Pittsburg, Oct. 1.—There was a revolution in the city government yesterday. It was on the lines of the ripper bill. Over 100 city officials and employees were ripped from their places, including the heads of five bureaus of the public safety department and several in the public works department. Only seven appointments were made to fill the vacancies. The public safety division of city affairs was turned inside out, the ripping extending down into the ranks of inspectors of police, health and electricity.
There will be more of it today. Director Bigelow has another list ready for decapitation. The removals of yesterday included every department except that of charities. Director Nisbet's announcements are to come today also.

Roger O'Mara, superintendent of the bureau of detectives, was retired on a pension.

BASEBALL LEAGUE COMBINE.
Those Except In National and American Leagues.

New York, Oct. 1.—President P. T.
Powers, of the Eastern baseball league, gave out a statement that in consequence of the National league's abrogation of the national agreement all the professional baseball clubs in the United States and Canada, excepting the 16 clubs, members of the National and American leagues, have banded together for mutual protection and organized an independent association under the name of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, of which Powers is the president.

Mr. Powers has addressed a letter to the president of each club member of the National and American leagues, asking them to co-operate with the new association in respecting the reserve and contract rights of the clubs and players.

Durbin Holds Back Reply.

Indianapolis, Oct. 1.—Governor Durbin informed the Kentucky officials who are here with a requisition from Governor Beckham, of Kentucky, for the return to that state for trial of W. S. Taylor and Charles Finley, charged with complicity in the Goebel murder, that he would not render a formal decision for a week or more.

The White Lies of Society

By Dr. E.
BENJAMIN
ANDREWS
Chancellor of
The University
Of Nebraska

EXCEPTION is permissible when the motive is good,
but when practiced for the sake of social distinction
or money it is not to be endured.

A PREACHER WHO PREACHES FOR SALARY ALONE IS TOO MEAN TO LIVE:
HE SHOULD BE HUNG, QUARTERED AND BURNED AND HIS BIOGRAPHY WRIT-TEN BY HIS WORST ENEMY.

Conciliation is necessary for any great number of people to agree to hymns, creed or liturgy. I would throw out many of the hymns if I had anything to do with it. Other people would throw out others, and soon we would have all new hymns which would be as unsatisfactory as the old. Do not leave a church because you do not agree with all the details of its creed.

Society women often send down word that they are not at home
when a caller rings, while they are up stairs trying to take a nap.
This is a conventional misstatement not meant to deceive any one,
and it rarely does. IT IS A LIE THAT IS NOT A LIE AND SEEMS TO HAVE LITTLE HARM IN IT.

Another of the conventional lies that we hate is the complimentary ending to letters. We say "Yours, truly," when we mean nothing of the sort. Admiral Schley would probably sign his letters to Sampson "Most respectfully, your obedient servant," when he feels that he is nothing of the sort, and Sampson knows it too.

ABOUT ALL WE MEAN BY THESE CONVENTIONAL ENDINGS IS THE SAME AS WE MEAN WHEN WE SAY "AMEN!" WHICH INDI-CATES THAT WE ARE THROUGH.

The American Conscience Is All Right—But It's Asleep

It is consoling to know that notwithstanding our failure to discharge our civic duties
many of the currents of our national life flow smoothly on, for the daily and obscure labors of the vast majority of our fellow citizens continue year after year in all the different phases of our national existence.

The laborers themselves have been sowing and reaping, working steadily at the tasks appointed them, taking the sunshine and the rain, mutely enduring the sufferings and the burdens given them to bear, and acquitting themselves worthily as good men and women ought to do.

Daily confronting of the daily task and doing it with patience, contentment and courage are as true today as ever, while it is also true that the recompense of such deserving labors, while less proportionately, is actually far greater in all measures, material and spiritual, than ever before, so that after all abatement we may regard the past with abundant gratitude and the future with absolute confidence, while on the threshold of the new century it is still true that THE HAPPIEST OF POLITICAL FORTUNES IS TO BE AN AMERICAN CITIZEN, and that fortune is sure to grow happier
"with the process of the suns." The present paralysis of our moral courage, our present cowardly toleration of loathsome corruption and its kindred evils, which seem to seriously threaten our peace; our present animal lust for blood, and the general degradation of the national spirit, will prove to be only temporary evils and will soon pass away, for THE AMERICAN CONSCIENCE IS NOT DEAD, BUT SLEEPETH, and, even if we do not, our children will return to the old ways and the old faith. Let me repeat once more those inspired words of the first great American: "The nation shall under God have a new birth of freedom, and government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

one there now. FIVE MONTHS AGO, WHEN I SMASHED
THE FIRST SALOON IN THAT PLACE, THERE WERE 40
IN ALL. THERE IS NOT ONE NOW. You who have no faith in the hatchet, bring forth something better. The things I have destroyed, such as mirrors, bottles, glasses and so on, don't cost much.
I have been whipped in the public highway by a woman hired to do it, I have been thrown into jail and knocked down in the gutter, but I am still alive and in a good state of preservation. But I tell you, being in jail is nothing to a broken heart. Ten thousand houses would hardly hold the broken hearts in this world because of liquor.
The human being begins to degenerate when he begins to drink.

Mothers, when your boys grow up to be 21 years old, DON'T LET THEM GO TO THE SALOON AND VOTE YOU OUT OF YOUR RIGHTS. Remember, we women are in the majority, so far as numbers are concerned. It is time for us to take a hand in the government instead of keeping a back seat.

FOREIGN COMMERCE.

Means Used In Europe to Develop Merchant Marine.

AMERICA MUST DO THE SAME.

What Germany Does to Obtain and Keep Her Share of the Ocean Carrying Trade of the World.

It is a favorite Democratic device,
in their endeavor to defeat any attempt at the revival of American shipping, to deny that other countries give special aid to the shipping interests of those countries. There is abundant evidence in proof that subsidy in fact, whatever may be the name used to conceal that it is a subsidy, has been the main instrument in the development of the commerce of these other countries. In the last 30 years, while the ocean commerce of the United States has grown immensely, the transportation of its freight has
ping of other nations. In that period the relative importance of Germany as a maritime nation, her rank in the carrying trade of the world has steadily advanced until today the Hamburg-American and the North German Lloyds, in the number and size of their steamships, and the vast territory that they traverse—practically covering every sea—are among the greatest steamship companies of the world. Their development from small beginnings has been a direct result of government aid. Yet this has been so skillfully manipulated that even to this day they are able to enter a technical denial to the claim that they get any subsidies from their government. This denial has been echoed and re-echoed in this country by the free trade Democracy, who are always to be counted upon as against anything American.
Just the other day Herr Ballin, the director-general of the Hamburg-American line, in a letter written expressly for publication, asserted that his line receives only a small subsidy, and that is given for its part in maintaining a regular mail service between Germany and the far East. This has been taken up by the Democratic crusade against the revival of American shipping, but proves to be only technically true.

The actual facts have been ascertained and that upon authority so distinguished and conclusive as to shut out all controversy. The German government itself is this authority, and the evidence in regard to it is an official report to the British government,
by its ambassador at Berlin, Sir F.
Lascelles, in these words:

"The German government memorandum submitted to the imperial parliament with the bills proposing the grant of subsidies to the North German Lloyd company in 1883, and to the German East Africa company in 1890, expressly states 'that the annual sums to be granted as postal subventions in Germany cannot be regarded merely as a payment for services rendered,' that is to say, for carrying the mails; that these sums were asked for establishing and subsidizing German mail steamers.' This was fully recognized by the German legislative assembly, to whom the bill was submitted, and no one assumed that the subsidy was merely the value of the postal service, but it was looked upon as 'value also paid for important interests of the German export industry, the requirements of the navy, and of a colonial policy,' etc.

When the German government officially declares that it does pay subsidies, not for carrying the mails alone, but "for important interests of the German export industry," what is the sense of any newspapers asserting that "the German government has given nothing except for the service of carrying its mails?"

Sir F. Lascelles, in the report referred to, which was prepared by William Ward, the British consul general, demonstrates that indirect bounties are given by the German government to German steamship lines in the foreign trade to a large but unknown extent. The Hamburg-American line participates in these bounties. Consul General Ward says: "This indirect subsidy cannot be expressed in figures, inasmuch as this bounty is granted in the form of exemptions from payment of customs duties, and preferential railway rates."

Goods shipped on the German railways for export on German steamships are charged a much lower rate than if shipped on foreign steamers.
Consul General Ward says that the indirect bounties in the way of preferential railway rates have been of immense advantage to German steamships and he gives figures to prove it.
James Knott of the North of England Steamship Owners' association testified not long ago before a parliamentary committee that his line had lost a good deal of trade which it formerly got at Antwerp because "cargoes are now diverted to Hamburg on account of preferential railway rates, which are tantamount to a subsidy." He gave facts that proved the diversion of business from his line to the Hamburg-American and other lines as a result of this preferential German railway rate. Sir Thomas Sutherland, president of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation company, testified as to the subsidy ($1,650,000)

which his line receives from the British government, and then said that the German government paid to a competing German proportionately a much larger sum.

The German government, according to Consul General Ward, pays nearly $2,050,000 annually in direct subsidies.
That does not include the $25,000 paid to the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd lines for carrying German mails to America. With a coast line that is very small compared with that of the United States,
and a very much smaller export trade,
the German government nevertheless pays about $500,000 a year more to German shipping alone than the United States pays to its own steamships and those of other nations for carrying the United States mails on the Atlantic and Pacific and other waters.
In addition there are these large indirect bounties paid by the German government.

STAND BY OUR LEADER

Support the Policies Inaugurated by McKinley.

The Duty of Ohio Republicans to Endorse Them Through a Rousing Majority on November 5.

The tomb has closed forever about the mortal remains of William McKinley, yet his glorious spirit has risen in matchless light and will go before the people to guide them in the straight and narrow pathway of justice and righteousness. His was the royal road of life, beaten by the footsteps of a Christian statesman, and illuminated by the light of wisdom and virtue. The earthly form of the great statesman has passed to dust; but his divine spirit will forever remain to his people a sweet and sustaining influence. "Great men never die."

William McKinley was the greatest creative and constructive statesman that ever guided the destinies of this mighty republic. His was the grand genius which conceived the vaster possibilities of the state; his was the voice of authority which bade the oppressor stay his hand and let the struggling captives go free; his were the sheltering arms which gathered the downtrodden people under the aegis of liberty and crowned them with the priceless blessings of justice, hope and perpetual liberty. The powerful fetters of provincialism were shattered by one blow of his weighty arm. He enlarged the boundaries, broadened the scope of action, and expanded the power and influence of the nation. He asserted American greatness in the austere councils of the old-world powers. He won for us credit at home and prestige abroad. And yet his mission was incomplete.

Our leader has fallen prone beside a great, though unfinished, work. His mantle has fallen upon the shoulders of a strong and resourceful man—a man who was the disciple and loyal follower of our fallen leader—who will follow in the safe and conservative course so well marked out by a master mind. There will be no change in the policy of the lamented chieftain, no deviation from the broad statesmanlike policies which he formulated.
Though he be dead, the influence of McKinley will still dominate the great party of which he was the natural leader and wise counselor.

The hand of death has obliterated all party lines; has stilled the voice of the trader, and permitted the spirit of justice and moderation full and free scope of action. The angel of peace and love now pervades the land. Our great leader has risen above the sphere of partisanship; he has become the hero of the American people—standing in the blessed company of Lincoln, Grant and Garfield. Therefore, let the people rally with united force to the support of the policies so auspiciously inaugurated by McKinley. Let them gather around his worthy successor, and strengthen his arm in the arduous work which he has assumed. Loyalty to McKinley can be strongly and effectively manifested by a firm and aggressive support of the administration of Roosevelt. The success of the latter will restore the memory of the former with greater honor. No higher tribute can be paid to the memory of our martyr president than by a strong and united support of the policies which he inaugurated.

In the campaign now resumed let our motto be: Stand by Our Leader.

RHEUMATIC WARPED LIMBS.

To suffer the most excruciating pains, to lose the use of limbs, and to have the joints swollen and disfigured is the lot of the victim of rheumatism.

Uric acid in the blood is the cause of rheumatism. If the kidneys are active, they remove the uric acid. That is their special work. If, on the other hand, the kidneys are deranged, there is sure to be uric acid in the blood and rheumatic pains through the body.

No amount of liniment will ever cure rheumatism. It sometimes relieves, but cure can only be brought about by setting the kidneys right. The most effective kidney remedy known to man is Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They cure rheumatism permanently by making the kidneys active in the work of removing the uric acid from the blood.

Mr. William J. Coad, No. 65 Brunson Street
Cawego, N. Y., writes: "I am very glad to praise
Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and tell you they have done for me. I suffered for many years with severe constipation, Rheumatism and kidney trouble, and could get no relief until I tried Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In them
I found immediate relief, and can honestly recommend them to other sufferers."

Mr. Wm. Anderson, of 305 Lisbon

I enlisted and served three years in the Forty-second Ohio infantry. From the exposure during the war I attribute the severe aching and weakness in the joints and muscular rheumatism of recent years which all seemed to center in my kidneys. In the morning when first getting up I was very dizzy until I had moved around for a time and my nervous system became affected, causing a fluttering and fullness around the heart. Seeing an advertisement in the paper I got Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. pharmacy and took them. A few doses gave me relief. The improvement was gradual and continued as the medicine got more thoroughly into my system.
I firmly believe that Doan's Kidney Pills will in every case, as they did in mine, prove the justness of the claims made for them."

RIPPED FROM JOBS.

Wholesale Decapitation by the
New Officials of Pittsburg.

OVER 100 WERE DISCHARGED.

The Removals Were on the Lines of
the Ripper Bill, Passed by the Last Session of the Pennsylvania Legislature.

Pittsburg, Oct. 1.—There was a revolution in the city government yesterday. It was on the lines of the ripper bill. Over 100 city officials and employees were ripped from their jobs, including the heads of five bureaus of the public safety department and several in the public works department. Only seven appointments were made to fill the vacancies. The public safety division of city affairs was turned inside out, the ripping extending down into the ranks of inspectors of police, health and electricity. There will be more of it today. Director Bigelow has another list ready for decapitation. The removals of yesterday included every department except that of charities. Director Nisbet's announcements are to come today also.

Roger O'Mara, superintendent of the bureau of detectives, was retired on a pension.

The Dismissals.

Those dismissed were:

A. H. Leslie, superintendent of the bureau of police.

Morris W. Mead, superintendent of the bureau of electricity.

Crosby Gray, superintendent of the bureau of health.

Dr. R. L. Taylor, medical examiner.

Robert McKinley, assistant chief engineer, bureau of fire.

Robert Black, superintendent of horses.

Frank Orbin, bureau of electricity.

Jesse N. Pavey, detective.

William Bradley, inspector of police.

Edward Barry, detective.

George W. Miller, Jr., detective.

John Sunderman, night operator, bureau of police.

Ralph Bast, clerk, bureau of police.

Joseph Picard, clerk to Superintendent Leslie.

J. P. Richardson, bureau of building.

A. H. Edwards, meat and milk inspector.

Henry Upperman, mechanical engineer.

Theodore Hindman, garbage inspector.

John Cashmore, sanitary policeman.

A. Brown, clerk.

Harry Philson, clerk.

W. R. Bailey, clerk.

Blair Schroth, messenger.

C. J. Ruhlandt, superintendent of the bureau of deed registry.

L. L. Dilworth, chief clerk of the bureau of deed registry.

George W. Burke, superintendent of Highland park.

Robert McAdams, clerk of the Diamond market.

E. J. Normecutt, chief clerk of the water bureau.

W. A. Atkinson, assistant engineer and chief inspector of the bureau of engineering and construction.

W. N. Matthews, clerk, Seventh ward.

J. N. Johnston, clerk, Nineteenth ward.

H. W. Lowe, clerk, Thirty-first ward.

Appointments.

Thomas A. McQuade, to be superintendent of detectives.

Philip Demmel, to be superintendent of police.

A. J. Pitts, to be superintendent of the health bureau.

George Lemon, to be superintendent of the public safety department.

Dr. A. E. McCandless, city physician.

Police Captain Patrick F. Kelly, to be police inspector of the first district.

Lieutenant Thomas Morley, to be inspector of the third district.

A. H. Kane, to be chief clerk to the police superintendent.

Henry J. Gregg, clerk, Twenty-third ward.

John Thomas, clerk, Thirty-first ward.

J. S. Mawhinney, clerk, Sixth ward.

Frank E. Vetter, clerk, Twentieth ward.

Those Except In National and American Leagues.

New York, Oct. 1.—President P. T. Powers, of the Eastern baseball league, gave out a statement that in consequence of the National league's abrogation of the national agreement all the professional baseball clubs in the United States and Canada, excepting the 16 clubs, members of the National and American leagues, have banded together for mutual protection and organized an independent association under the name of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, of which Powers is the president.

Mr. Powers has addressed a letter to the president of each club member of the National and American leagues, asking them to co-operate with the new association in respecting the reserve and contract rights of the clubs and players.

Durbin Holds Back Reply.

Indianapolis, Oct. 1.—Governor Durbin informed the Kentucky officials who are here with requisition from Governor Beckham, of Kentucky, for the return to that state for trial of W. S. Taylor and Charles Finley, charged with complicity in the Goetz murder, that he would not render a formal decision for a week or more.

The White Lies of Society

By Dr. E. BENJAMIN ANDREWS
Chancellor of
The University
Of Nebraska

EXCEPTION is permissible when the motive is good, but when practiced for the sake of social distinction or money it is not to be endured.

A PREACHER WHO PREACHES FOR SALARY ALONE IS TOO MEAN TO LIVE: HE SHOULD BE HUNG, QUARTERED AND BURNED AND HIS BIOGRAPHY WRITTEN BY HIS WORST ENEMY.

Conciliation is necessary for any great number of people to agree to hymns, creed or liturgy. I would throw out many of the hymns if I had anything to do with it. Other people would throw out others, and soon we would have all new hymns which would be as unsatisfactory as the old. Do not leave a church because you do not agree with all the details of its creed.

Society women often send down word that they are not at home when a caller rings, while they are up stairs trying to take a nap. This is a conventional misstatement not meant to deceive any one, and it rarely does. IT IS A LIE THAT IS NOT A LIE AND SEEMS TO HAVE LITTLE HARM IN IT.

Another of the conventional lies that we hate is the complimentary ending to letters. We say "Yours, truly," when we mean nothing of the sort. Admiral Schley would probably sign his letters to Sampson "Most respectfully, your obedient servant," when he feels that he is nothing of the sort, and Sampson knows it too.

ABOUT ALL WE MEAN BY THESE CONVENTIONAL ENDINGS IS THE SAME AS WE MEAN WHEN WE SAY "AMEN!" WHICH INDICATES THAT WE ARE THROUGH.

The American Conscience Is All Right—But It's Asleep

It is consoling to know that notwithstanding our failure to discharge our civic duties many of the currents of our national life flow smoothly on, for the daily and obscure labors of the vast majority of our fellow citizens continue year after year in all the different phases of our national existence.

The laborers themselves have been sowing and reaping, working steadily at the tasks appointed them, taking the sunshine and the rain, mutely enduring the sufferings and the burdens given them to bear, and acquitting themselves worthily as good men and women ought to do.

Daily confronting of the daily task and doing it with patience, contentment and courage are as true today as ever, while it is also true that the recompense of such deserving labors, while less proportionately, is actually far greater in all measures, material and spiritual, than ever before, so that after all abatement we may regard the past with abundant gratitude and the future with absolute confidence, while on the threshold of the new century it is still true that THE HAPPIEST OF POLITICAL FORTUNES IS TO BE AN AMERICAN CITIZEN, and that fortune is sure to grow happier "with the process of the suns." The present paralysis of our moral courage, our present cowardly toleration of loathsome corruption and its kindred evils, which seem to seriously threaten our peace; our present animal lust for blood, and the general degradation of the national spirit, will prove to be only temporary evils and will soon pass away, for THE AMERICAN CONSCIENCE IS NOT DEAD, BUT SLEEPETH, and, even if we do not, our children will return to the old ways and the old faith. Let me repeat once more those inspired words of the first great American: "The nation shall under God have a new birth of freedom, and government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

What I Have Accomplished

LOTS of people ask me what I have accomplished in my crusades. In my county alone in Kansas there were 18 dives, and there is not one there now. FIVE MONTHS AGO, WHEN I SMASHED THE FIRST SALOON IN THAT PLACE, THERE WERE 40 IN ALL. THERE IS NOT ONE NOW. You who have no faith in the hatchet, bring forth something better. The things I have destroyed, such as mirrors, bottles, glasses and so on, don't cost much. I have been whipped in the public highway by a woman hired to do it, I have been thrown into jail and knocked down in the gutter, but I am still alive and in a good state of preservation. But I tell you, being in jail is nothing to a broken heart. Ten thousand houses would hardly hold the broken hearts in this world because of liquor. The human being begins to degenerate when he begins to drink.

Mothers, when your boys grow up to be 21 years old, DON'T LET THEM GO TO THE SALOON AND VOTE YOU OUT OF YOUR RIGHTS. Remember, we women are in the majority, so far as numbers are concerned. It is time for us to take a hand in the government instead of keeping a back seat.

I AM PROUD OF MY SEX, BUT ALSO MORTIFIED.

FOREIGN COMMERCE.

Means Used In Europe to Develop Merchant Marine.

What Germany Does to Obtain and Keep Her Share of the Ocean-Carrying Trade of the World.

It is a favorite Democratic device, in their endeavor to defeat any attempt at the revival of American shipping, to deny that other countries give special aid to the shipping interests of those countries. There is abundant evidence in proof that subsidy in fact, whatever may be the name used to conceal that it is a subsidy, has been the main instrument in the development of the commerce of these other countries. In the last 30 years, while the ocean commerce of the United States has grown immensely, the transportation of its freight has continued in the hands of the shipping of other nations. In that period the relative importance of Germany as a maritime nation, her rank in the carrying trade of the world has steadily advanced until today the Hamburg-American and the North German Lloyds, in the number and size of their steamships, and the vast territory that they traverse—practically covering every sea—are among the greatest steamship companies of the world. Their development from small beginnings has been a direct result of government aid. Yet this has been so skillfully manipulated that even to this day they are able to enter a technical denial to the claim that they get any subsidies from their government. This denial has been echoed and reechoed in this country by the free trade Democracy, who are always to be counted upon as against anything American. Just the other day Herr Ballin, the director-general of the Hamburg-American line, in a letter written expressly for publication, asserted that his line receives only a small subsidy, and that is given for its part in maintaining a regular mail service between Germany and the far East. This has been taken up by the Democratic crusade against the revival of American shipping, but proves to be only technically true.

The actual facts have been ascertained and that upon authority so distinguished and conclusive as to shut out all controversy. The German government itself is this authority, and the evidence in regard to its is an official report to the British government, by its ambassador at Berlin, Sir P. Lascelles. In these words:

"The German government memorandum submitted to the Imperial parliament with the bills proposing the grant of subsidies to the North German Lloyd company in 1880, and to the German East Africa company in 1890, expressly states 'that the annual sums to be granted as postal subsidies in Germany cannot be regarded merely as a payment for services rendered; that is to say, for carrying the mails; that these sums were asked for establishing and subsidizing German mail steamers.' This was fully recognized by the German legislative assembly, to whom the bill was submitted, and no one assumed that the subsidy was merely the value of the postal service, but it was looked upon as 'value also paid for important interests of the German export industry, the requirements of the navy, and of a colonial policy,' etc.

When the German government officially declares that it does pay subsidies, not for carrying the mails alone, but "for important interests of the German export industry," what is the sense of any newspapers asserting that "the German government has given nothing except for the service of carrying its mails?"

Sir F. Lascelles, in the report referred to, which was prepared by William Ward, the British consul general, demonstrates that indirect bounties are given by the German government to German steamship lines in the foreign trade to a large but unknown extent. The Hamburg-American line participates in these bounties. Consul General Ward says: "This indirect subsidy cannot be expressed in figures, inasmuch as this bounty is granted in the form of exemptions from payment of customs duties, and preferential railway rates."

Goods shipped on the German railways for export on German steamships are charged a much lower rate than if shipped on foreign steamers. Consul General Ward says that the indirect bounties in the way of preferential railway rates have been of immense advantage to German steamships and he gives figures to prove it. James Knott of the North of England Steamship Owners' association testified not long ago before a parliamentary committee that his line had lost a good deal of trade which it formerly got at Antwerp because "cargoes are now diverted to Hamburg on account of preferential railway rates, which are tantamount to a subsidy." He gave facts that proved the diversion of business from his line to the Hamburg-American and other lines as a result of this preferential German railway rate. Sir Thomas Sutherland, president of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation company, testified as to the subsidy ($1,650,000) which his line receives from the British government, and then said that the German government paid to a competing German proportionately a much larger sum.

The German government, according to Consul General Ward, pays nearly $2,050,000 annually in direct subsidies. That does not include the $25,000 paid to the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd lines for carrying German mails to America. With a coast line that is very small compared with that of the United States, and a very much smaller export trade, the German government nevertheless pays about $500,000 a year more to German shipping alone than the United States pays to its own steamships and those of other nations for carrying the United States mails on the Atlantic and Pacific and other waters. In addition there are these large indirect bounties paid by the German government.

STAND BY OUR LEADER

Support the Policies Inaugurated by McKinley.

The Duty of Ohio Republicans to Endorse Them Through a Rousing Majority on November 5.

The tomb has closed forever about the mortal remains of William McKinley, yet his glorious spirit has risen in matchless light and will go before the people to guide them in the straight and narrow pathway of justice and righteousness. His was the royal road of life, beaten by the footsteps of a Christian statesman, and illumined by the light of wisdom and virtue. The earthly form of the great statesman has passed to dust; but his divine spirit will forever remain to his people a sweet and sustaining influence. "Great men never die."

William McKinley was the greatest creative and constructive statesman that ever guided the destinies of this mighty republic. His was the grand genius which conceived the vaster possibilities of the state; his was the voice of authority which bade the oppressor stay his hand and let the struggling captives go free; his were the sheltering arms which gathered the downtrodden people under the aegis of liberty and crowned them with the priceless blessings of justice, hope and perpetual liberty. The powerful fetters of provincialism were shattered by one blow of his mighty arm. He enlarged the boundaries, broadened the scope of action, and expanded the power and influence of the nation. He asserted American greatness in the austere councils of the old-world powers. He won for us credit at home and prestige abroad. And yet his mission was incomplete.

Our leader has fallen prone beside a great, though unfinished, work. His mantle has fallen upon the shoulders of a strong and resourceful man—a man who was the disciple and loyal follower of our fallen leader—who will follow in the safe and conservative course so well marked out by a master mind. There will be no change in the policy of the lamented chieftain, no deviation from the broad statesmanlike policies which he formulated. Though he be dead, the influence of McKinley will still dominate the great party of which he was the natural leader and wise counselor.

The hand of death has obliterated all party lines; has stilled the voice of the traducer, and permitted the spirit of justice and moderation full and free scope of action. The angel of peace and love now pervades the land. Our great leader has risen above the sphere of partisanship; he has become the hero of the American people—standing in the blessed company of Lincoln, Grant and Garfield. Therefore, let the people rally with united force to the support of the policies so auspiciously inaugurated by McKinley. Let them gather around his worthy successor, and strengthen his arm in the arduous work which he has assumed. Loyalty to McKinley can be strongly and effectively manifested by a firm and aggressive support of the administration of Roosevelt. The success of the latter will crown the memory of the former with greater honor. No higher tribute can be paid to the memory of our martyr president than by a strong and united support of the policies which he inaugurated.

In the campaign now resumed let our motto be: Stand by Our Leader.

RHEUMATIC WARPED LIMBS.

To suffer the most excruciating pains, to lose the use of limbs, and to have the joints swollen and disfigured is the lot of the victim of rheumatism.

Uric acid in the blood is the cause of rheumatism. If the kidneys are active, they remove the uric acid. That is their special work. If, on the other hand, the kidneys are deranged, there is sure to be uric acid in the blood and rheumatic pain through the body.

No amount of liniment will ever cure rheumatism. It sometimes relieves, but cure can only be brought about by setting the kidneys right. The most effective kidney remedy known to man is Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They cure rheumatism permanently by making the kidneys active in the work of removing the uric acid from the blood.

Mr. William J. Coed, No. 65 Brunson Street, Oswego, N. Y., writes: "I am very glad to praise Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and tell you they have done for me. I suffered for many years with severe constipation, Rheumatism and kidney trouble, and could get no relief until I tried Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In them found immediate relief, and can honestly recommend them to other sufferers."

Mr. Wm. Anderson, of 305 Lisbon street, says: "During the civil war I enlisted and served three years in the Forty-second Ohio infantry. From the exposure during the war I attribute the severe aching and weakness in the joints and muscular rheumatism of recent years which all seemed to center in my kidneys. In the morning when first getting up I was very dizzy until I had moved around for a time and my nervous system became affected, causing a fluttering and fullness around the heart. Seeing an advertisement in the paper I got Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. pharmacy and took them. A few doses gave me relief. The improvement was gradual and continued as the medicine got more thoroughly into my system. I firmly believe that Doan's Kidney Pills will in every case, as they did in mine, prove the justness of the claims made for them."

TEXAS WAS IN DANGER

From the Brooklyn, So Admiral
Evans Testified Before
Schley Inquiry.

DIDN'T GIVE SCHLEY THE CODE

That Had Been Arranged With the Cubans, Because, He Said, He Thought That Commodore Schley
Knew It.

Washington, Oct. 1.—Rear Admiral Evans, who, as captain, commanded the battleship Iowa during the Santiago campaign, was a witness before the Schley naval court of inquiry. His testimony covered the entire period from the time the Iowa left the port of Key West on the 20th of May, 1898, until the 5th of July, when Admiral Evans testified he had a conversation with Admiral Schley concerning the battle of the 3d. He described in detail the principal battle off Santiago, and also gave particulars concerning the bombardment of the Colon on the 31st of May.

Other witnesses were Captain Theodore F. Jewell, who was commander of the cruiser Minneapolis during the Spanish war, and Commander James M. Miller, who was in command of the Collier Merrimac until that vessel was turned over to Lieutenant Hobson, to be sunk in the mouth of the harbor at Santiago. Admiral Evans had not concluded his testimony when the court adjourned until today.

The testimony of Rear Admiral Evans was in part as follows:

Portion of Evans' Testimony.

He stated that he had first joined the flying squadron off Cienfuegos on May 22d, at 1 p. m., when he took dispatches from Admiral Sampson to Commodore Schley. These dispatches he had sent to Commodore Schley by his executive officer, Commander Rogers, he not seeing the commodore himself. As the dispatches were sealed he did not know their contents.

Admiral Evans said that he had coaled the Iowa from the Merrimac, he thought, on May 23, while off Cienfuegos, and that he had had no difficulty in doing so.

He said that after leaving Cienfuegos the vessel had steamed to a point about 30 miles south of Santiago, arriving there on the evening of the 26th, and at that time the squadron was heading to the east. The weather at that time, he said, was not such as to prevent the coaling of ships at that date.

The witness said he could have coaled at sea on the 27th, as the sea was smooth.

"Was any effort made by the flying squadron on May 28, 29 or 30 to communicate with the insurgents on shore near Santiago?"

"None to my knowledge."

Testifying that he had first seen the Colon on May 29, Admiral Evans said that vessel was not inside the harbor at all, but was about 1,500 yards inside the Morro.

He then detailed the particulars of the bombardment of the Colon on May 31, saying that on the forenoon of that day Commodore Schley had signalled to transfer the flag to the Massachusetts; that he was going in to engage the Colon. Describing that engagement, the witness said:

"About five minutes to 1 I saw the first shot from the Massachusetts fall short a long distance, and supposing she was firing at 7,000 yards, I gave the range to my guns 8,000 yards. I saw these shots fall short and increased the range to 9,000 yards. After the Massachusetts had passed the entrance to the harbor she turned with port helm and steamed back, the New Orleans and Iowa following. On the run back across the harbor I again fired at 10,000 yards. The shots still fell short, and as the Massachusetts and New Orleans slowed down and stopped after they got across I slowed my engines, then increased the range to 11,000 yards and fired two shots from the forward 12-inch turret. The first one was fired by Lieutenant Van Deusen at 11,000 yards. I saw that it fell short. Lieutenant Hill had the other gun in that turret. I gave him the range at 11,500 yards and he fired, and that shot struck very near the stern of the Colon. Both 12-inch guns were disabled at the fire from that extreme elevation. After that we stood a mile and a half, possibly two miles, to our blockading station again. That was all I saw done to injure the Colon."

The witness was then asked about the blockade off Santiago under Commodore Schley. He said the squadron stood seven or eight miles out during the daytime and a little farther out at night, with the Vixen and Marblehead on the inside at night.

Describing the Naval Battle, Admiral Evans said:

After some questions by Lemly, he said:

"I saw the Brooklyn when the fight began. When I reached the bridge of the Iowa the Brooklyn was still off to the westward, headed, I should say, northwest. That was just as the fight began. I saw her again possibly five minutes afterward, when she was steaming westward very fast, firing her port battery, headed northwest, toward the head of the Spanish column. I did not see the Brooklyn again until my attention was directed to her by the navigator calling to me, 'Look out, Captain, for the Texas.' I went on the port bridge, where the navigator was standing, and I said, 'Where the devil is the Texas?' The navigator said, 'Here she is, sir, in the smoke.' I said to myself, 'Captain Philip will look after the Texas,' and went below. In a few minutes the navigator called out again, 'Look out, Captain, you will run into the Texas.' I walked over to the port side of the bridge and saw the Brooklyn's smoke stack and military masts. She was lying directly across the bows of the Texas. The Texas was apparently backing and dangerously close to the Iowa. The Brooklyn seemed to be 100 yards directly in front of the Texas. I eased the helm of the Iowa a little, ported her helm a little, and just at that moment the Oregon came through my lee and passed between me and the Texas, and the three boats were bunched together. At that time the Brooklyn was shut out in the smoke, and I saw no more of her until the Colon had passed well to the westward of me, when some one on the bridge said: 'The Brooklyn is knocked out.' I went on the bridge to see what had happened and she was then about a mile and a half forward to the port beam of the Iowa, with the Colon seven or eight miles ahead on her starboard bow. From that time on the firing was light and I could see the Brooklyn occasionally. The Brooklyn was on her starboard bow, on the port quarter of the Colon. Well astern of her was the Oregon, with the Vixen off shore of the Brooklyn. The Iowa at the time was directly in the wake of the Colon, with the Vixen a little on her starboard bow."

New the Secret Code.

On his cross-examination by Mr. Rayner, Admiral Evans said that he had left Key West with the Iowa for Cienfuegos on May 20, and that he knew before leaving that port that a secret code had been arranged for communicating with the insurgents on shore at Cienfuegos, as Captain Chadwick had given him this information.

"Then did you inform Commodore Schley that this system of signals had been arranged?"

"I did not. It never entered my mind that he did not know it."

"The Marblehead being the vessel that established this code and Commodore Schley's squadron having arrived at Key West before the Marblehead got there, how did it get into your mind that Commodore Schley must have known of the signals code?"

"You make the mistake of supposing that I knew this was done by the Marblehead. I had no knowledge that the Marblehead had arranged these signals. They were simply given to me by the chief of staff as a system of signals."

"Upon what ground did you suppose that Commodore Schley knew it?"

"He was the commanding officer of the squadron."

"From what sources did you suppose he got this information?"

"I did not suppose anything about it. It never entered my head. If it had, I should have said, of course, that the commanding officer of a naval force would not expect one of his junior captains to give him information about his signals. It was given to me as a piece of information, which I thought every captain in the fleet had. I never thought of Commodore Schley in connection with it. If I had supposed for a moment that Commodore Schley did not have it I would have given it to him the first thing on my arrival there. I did not intend to say that Commodore Schley had this signal code."

Mr. Rayner questioned Admiral Evans at some length concerning the signals as displayed on the coast near Cienfuegos, which the admiral said the officer of the deck had told him had been seen on May 22 and 23, but the witness said he had had no conversation with Admiral Schley about these lights, and he had made no report to him of their appearance or significance.

Mr. Rayner—When did you first know about the turn of the Brooklyn, as you say, a short distance from the Texas?"

"When I saw her cross the bow of the Texas."

"Do you recollect the conversation you had with Commodore Schley the 5th of July, the second day after the battle, regarding the loop of the Brooklyn?"

"No, sir, I do not. I do not remember mentioning the subject at all."

"You do not recollect that Commodore Schley first told you on July 5 that it was the Brooklyn and not the Texas that made the turn?"

"I never imagined anything of the sort."

Concerning the position of the Brooklyn and the Texas on the day of the battle, the witness said:

Brooklyn Dangerously Near.

"The Brooklyn was dangerously near the Texas. I should say within 100 yards of her."

Captain Lemly made some interrogations on re-direct examination. He asked: "Under what instructions, verbal, written or by signal from the flagship Brooklyn, did you maneuver the Iowa during the naval battle off Santiago, July 3, 1898?"

"I never saw any signal from her. I did not maneuver in obedience to any signal from the Brooklyn. I did not see any signals aboard her."

"Or any written or verbal instructions?"

"None whatever."

By the court—In the attack on the Colon on May 31, did any of the enemy's shot fall near the squadron?

"Two, I think, fell near the Iowa."

"Would it have been possible for the Iowa to coal from the Merrimac early in the afternoon of May 26?"

"It would have been."

"Do you know of any reason why the ships could not get nearer the Colon on May 31?"

"I know of no reason why they could not."

"Are there any positions between Cienfuegos and the neighborhood of Santiago where vessels can coal in rough weather?"

"Between Cienfuegos and Santiago, I know of no place where they could coal in rough weather."

"Was there any period between May 24 and May 26 when the Iowa could not have coaled from the Collier Merrimac?"

"She could have coaled from 8 o'clock in the morning of the 25th until 8 or 9 o'clock on the morning of the 26th, when it moderated."

OFFICERS KILLED.

SAMAR BOLOMEN ATTACKED AMERICANS AT BREAKFAST.

Majority of Soldiers Met Death in Barracks—Insurgent Casualties 140.

Washington, Oct. 1.—In addition to the enlisted men, three commissioned officers of Company C, Ninth infantry, are supposed now to have been killed in the action in Samar, Philippine Islands, last Saturday.

Owing to the distance from Manila of the scene of the massacre, the officials of the war department do not expect a response to their order for a full list of the casualties before today. However, they feel assured that the officers of the ill-fated company certainly perished.

Manila, Oct. 1.—Sergeant Mauley and a private of Company C, of the Ninth infantry, which was surprised and many of the men killed at Balangiga, Samar, by a band of insurgents, escaped across the bay to Tanauan Leyte and have made a report on the action.

The sergeant and private evidently did not know of the escape of 24 of their comrades to Basey, Island of Samar. They report that 400 bolomen attacked the garrison of Balangiga, who were at breakfast and were without their arms. A majority of the men in the barracks were killed and none was left alive in the town.

One hundred and forty natives were killed in the melee. As 24 men have already arrived at Basey, this story is evidently an exaggeration. There were only 72 men in the company and 26 have been accounted for.

FOR RURAL FREE DELIVERY.

Congress to Be Asked For Increase of $2,750,000.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The official estimates for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1902, which Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith will submit to congress at the opening of the session, call for an aggregate of $6,250,000 for rural free delivery service throughout the country. This is an increase of $2,750,000 over the expense of that rapidly growing service for the current year.

The total for the free delivery service proper, which is that operated in cities, is $18,745,000, an increase of 9 per cent. The grand aggregate for the entire postal free delivery service, inclusive of both the free delivery and rural free delivery, is $24,995,000.

TEXAS WAS IN DANGER

Evans Testified Before
Schley Inquiry.

DIDN'T GIVE SCHLEY THE CODE

That Had Been Arranged With the
Cubans, Because, He Said, He
Knew It.

Washington, Oct. 1.—Rear Admiral Evans, who, as captain, commanded the battleship Iowa during the Santiago campaign, was a witness before the Schley naval court of inquiry. His testimony covered the entire period from the time the Iowa left the port of Key West on the 20th of May, 1898, until the 5th of July, when Admiral Evans testified he had a conversation with Admiral Schley concerning the battle of the 3d. He described in detail the principal battle off Santiago, and also gave particulars concerning the bombardment of the Colon on the 31st of May.

Other witnesses were Captain Theodore F. Jewell, who was commander of the cruiser Minneapolis during the Spanish war, and Commander James M. Miller, who was in command of the Collier Merrimac until that vessel was turned over to Lieutenant Hobson, to be sunk in the mouth of the harbor at Santiago. Admiral Evans had not concluded his testimony when the court adjourned until today.

The testimony of Rear Admiral Evans was in part as follows:

Portion of Evans' Testimony.

He stated that he had first joined the flying squadron off Cienfuegos on May 22d, at 1 p. m., when he took dispatches from Admiral Sampson to Commodore Schley. These dispatches he had sent to Commodore Schley by his executive officer, Commander Rogers, he not seeing the commodore himself. As the dispatches were sealed he did not know their contents.

Admiral Evans said that he had coaled the Iowa from the Merrimac, he thought, on May 23, while off Cienfuegos, and that he had had no difficulty in doing so.

He said that after leaving Cienfuegos the vessel had steamed to a point about 30 miles south of Santiago, arriving there on the evening of the 26th, and at that time the squadron was heading to the east. The weather at that time, he said, was not such as to prevent the coaling of ships at that date.

The witness said he could have coaled at sea on the 27th, as the sea was smooth.

"Was any effort made by the flying squadron on May 28, 29 or 30 to communicate with the insurgents on shore near Santiago?"

"None to my knowledge."

Testifying that he had first seen the Colon on May 29, Admiral Evans said that vessel was not inside the harbor at all, but was about 1,500 yards inside the Morro.

He then detailed the particulars of the bombardment of the Colon on May 31, saying that on the forenoon of that day Commodore Schley had signalled to transfer the flag to the Massachusetts; that he was going in to engage the Colon. Describing that engagement, the witness said:

"About five minutes to 1 I saw the first shot from the Massachusetts fall short a long distance, and supposing she was firing at 7,000 yards, I gave the range to my guns 8,000 yards. I saw these shots fall short and increased the range to 9,000 yards. After the Massachusetts had passed the entrance to the harbor she turned with port helm and steamed back, the New Orleans and Iowa following. On the run back across the harbor I again fired at 10,000 yards. The shots still fell short, and as the Massachusetts and New Orleans slowed down and stopped after they got across I slowed my engines, then increased the range to 11,000 yards and fired two shots from the forward 12 inch turret. The first one was fired by Lieutenant Van Deusen at 11,000 yards. I saw that it fell short. Lieutenant Hill had the other gun in that turret. I gave him the range at 11,500 yards and he fired, and that shot struck very near the stern of the Colon. Both 12-inch guns were disabled at the fire from that extreme elevation. After that we stood a mile and a half, possibly two miles, to our blockading station again. That was all I saw done to injure the Colon."

The witness was then asked about the blockade off Santiago under Commodore Schley. He said the squadron stood seven or eight miles out during the daytime and a little farther out at night, with the Vixen and Marblehead on the inside at night.

Described the Naval Battle.

Describing the battle off Santiago, Admiral Evans said:

After some questions by Lemly, he said:

"I saw the Brooklyn when the fight began. When I reached the bridge of the Iowa the Brooklyn was still off to the westward, headed, I should say, northwest. That was just as the fight began. I saw her again possibly five minutes afterward, when she was steaming westward very fast, firing her port battery, headed northwest, toward the head of the Spanish column. I did not see the Brooklyn again until my attention was directed to her by the navigator calling to me, 'Look out, Captain, for the Texas.'"

I went on the port bridge, where the navigator was standing, and I said, 'Where the devil is the Texas?' The navigator said, 'Here she is, sir, in the smoke.' I said to myself, 'Captain Philip will look after the Texas,' and went below. In a few minutes the navigator called out again, 'Look out, Captain, you will run into the Texas.' I walked over to the port side of the bridge and saw the Brooklyn's smoke stack and military masts. She was lying directly across the bows of the Texas. The Texas was apparently backing and dangerously close to the Iowa. The Brooklyn seemed to be 100 yards directly in front of the Texas. I eased the helm of the Iowa a little, ported her helm a little, and just at that moment the Oregon came through my lee and passed between me and the Texas, and the three boats were bunched together. At that time the Brooklyn was shut out in the smoke, and I saw no more of her until the Colon had passed well to the westward of me, when some one on the bridge said: 'The Brooklyn is knocked out.'"

I went on the bridge to see what had happened and she was then about a mile and a half forward to the port beam of the Iowa, with the Colon seven or eight miles ahead on her starboard bow. From that time on the firing was light and I could see the Brooklyn occasionally. The Brooklyn was on her starboard bow, on the port quarter of the Colon. Well astern of her was the Oregon, with the Vixen off shore of the Brooklyn. The Iowa at the time was directly in the wake of the Colon, with the Vixen a little on her starboard bow."

New the Secret Code.

On his cross-examination by Mr. Rayner, Admiral Evans said that he had left Key West with the Iowa for Cienfuegos on May 20, and that he knew before leaving that port that a secret code had been arranged for communicating with the insurgents on shore at Cienfuegos, as Captain Chadwick had given him this information.

"Then did you inform Commodore Schley that this system of signals had been arranged?"

"I did not. It never entered my mind that he did not know it."

"The Marblehead being the vessel that established this code and Commodore Schley's squadron having arrived at Key West before the Marblehead got there, how did it get into your mind that Commodore Schley must have known of the signals code?"

"You make the mistake of supposing that I knew this was done by the Marblehead. I had no knowledge that the Marblehead had arranged these signals. They were simply given to me by the chief of staff as a system of signals."

"Upon what ground did you suppose that Commodore Schley knew it?"

"He was the commanding officer of the squadron."

"From what sources did you suppose he got this information?"

"I did not suppose anything about it. It never entered my head. If it had, I should have said, of course, that the commanding officer of a naval force would not expect one of his junior captains to give him information about his signals. It was given to me as a piece of information, which I thought every captain in the fleet had. I never thought of Commodore Schley in connection with it. If I had supposed for a moment that Commodore Schley did not have it I would have given it to him the first thing on my arrival there. I did not intend to say that Commodore Schley had this signal code."

Mr. Rayner questioned Admiral Evans at some length concerning the signals as displayed on the coast near Cienfuegos, which the admiral said the officer of the deck had told him had been seen on May 22 and 23, but the witness said he had had no conversation with Admiral Schley about these lights, and he had made no report to him of their appearance or significance.

Mr. Rayner—When did you first know about the turn of the Brooklyn, as you say, a short distance from the Texas?"

"When I saw her cross the bow of the Texas."

"Do you recollect the conversation you had with Commodore Schley the 5th of July, the second day after the battle, regarding the loop of the Brooklyn?"

"No, sir, I do not. I do not remember mentioning the subject at all."

"You do not recollect that Commodore Schley first told you on July 5 that it was the Brooklyn and not the Texas that made the turn?"

"I never imagined anything of the sort."

Brooklyn Dangerously Near.

"The Brooklyn was dangerously near the Texas. I should say within 100 yards of her."

Captain Lemly made some interrogations on re-direct examination. He asked: "Under what instructions, verbal, written or by signal from the flagship Brooklyn, did you maneuver the Iowa during the naval battle off Santiago, July 3, 1898?"

"I never saw any signal from her. I did not maneuver in obedience to any signal from the Brooklyn. I did not see any signals aboard her."

"Or any written or verbal instructions?"

"None whatever."

By the court—In the attack on the Colon on May 31, did any of the enemy's shot fall near the squadron?"

"Two, I think, fell near the Iowa."

"Would it have been possible for the Iowa to coal from the Merrimac early in the afternoon of May 26?"

"It would have been."

"Do you know of any reason why the ships could not get nearer the Colon on May 31?"

"I know of no reason why they could not."

"Are there any positions between Cienfuegos and the neighborhood of Santiago where vessels can coal in rough weather?"

"Between Cienfuegos and Santiago, I know of no place where they could coal in rough weather."

"Was there any period between May 24 and May 26 when the Iowa could not have coaled from the Collier Merrimac?"

When Aunt Mary Looped the Loop.

I've heard the orphan wailing when the wind blew through the street,
When the snow swept madly past him and the frost bit at his feet,
And his cry has made my heart ache, it has echoed through my dreams,
But no orphan's cry for succor and no outcast's hopeless screams
Ever shall haunt me as I'm haunted by the echo of the whoop,
The wild whoop that was uttered when Aunt Mary looped the loop.

I've heard the bossy moaning through the night for just a look At the calf the brawny butcher had hung somewhere on a hook;
I have heard the stricken woman with the pallid visage wait
In an anguish that was awful as they led her son to jail,
But of all sad sounds the saddest ever uttered was the whoop

That set the welkin ringing when Aunt Mary looped the loop.

The Steubenville Herald-Star is having its own troubles with the telegraph service furnished by the Western Union company in that city. It appears that Steubenville has the same poor excuse for a telegraph line that is furnished to East Liverpool. It is on a loop, and as the Herald-Star expresses it, "dispatches are repeated under a relay system which is a constant source of delay and irritation.
Recently a special filed at Scio for this paper required two hours for transmission to Steubenville, a distance of about 40 miles, the dispatch having been sent via Toledo and we do not know where else, possibly Pittsburg and the moon. The local management here does all it can to expedite business, but it cannot remove mountains. This kind of service is an outrage on a community the size of Steubenville, and if the Western Union cannot improve its service in this section it should turn the work over to some more enterprising corporation." That is exactly the situation in East Liverpool. But as long as the business men of two such populous cities tamely submit to this sort of service, paying a good round price
for it, too, they are likely to get nothing better. A little healthy competition in the telegraph business in this town would be a mighty good thing for the general public, and a united effort on the part of the business men might bring it about.

It is hard to believe that enlightened Ohio harbors any being so base as to desire to desecrate the tomb of the beloved president so lately murdered. But the story that comes from Canton is so well substantiated that it cannot be doubted that it has a basis of fact. Though Czolgosz, the assassin, is robbed of the power to work more evil, it is evident that there are other anarchists and anarchistic sympathizers for whom no deed of depraved malevolence is too base. That their boldness and their depravity may lead to their own undoing is a consummation devoutly to be wished, and there need be no fear that every effort to hunt them down and punish them to the fullest extent of the law will not be employed. Public feeling has been fully aroused and it is to be hoped that the doom of anarchy has been pronounced.

The city of Syracuse has adopted a regulation that might be copied with profit elsewhere. Every school child in that city will hereafter be examined as to the condition of its health at least once a month. This is the decision of the board of health. Dr.
B. S. Moore, the health officer, says that defects in eyesight will be discovered and remedied and infectious diseases will be especially watched

for. The physicians will also teach the pupils how to sit in their seats and possible deformity will be guarded against.

Twenty-one township trustees from the various townships of Stark county held a meeting at the Canton court house recently, to inaugurate a movement looking toward some changes in the road laws of the state that will be beneficial to the roads and secure a better return for the labor and money expended upon them. It would be well for every county if such officials were to get together occasionally, not only to discuss road laws, but ways and means of expending road money so that it would not be wasted,
as the major portion of it is today.

If President Roosevelt accomplishes half the work his enthusiastic admirers are laying out for him he will need to be strenuously active for a century or so.

Just at the present time several people in Pittsburg would probably be glad to exchange their new ripper bill for something milder—an earthquake,
for instance.

One defeat at foot ball is not discouraging, but it is quite enough at this stage of the game and emphasizes the necessity of practice.

Only a small part of the blowing about the yacht race has been done
by the wind up to date.

The need of education for the Filipinos is painfully apparent.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Mary H. Ward.

Mrs. Mary H. Ward died at 6 o'clock this morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Williams, St. George street, East End, from the infirmities of old age. Mrs. Ward was in her 74th year and had been a sufferer from lung trouble for many years. Mrs. Ward was the widow of the late Edward Ward, who died in Salineville some 12 years ago. She has been a resident of East Liverpool for the past nine years, making her home with Mrs.
Williams, who is a niece of the dead woman. She was also an aunt of John Hickman, who is connected with the experimental station at Wooster, O. Mr.
Hickman has been notified and is expected here today. No definite arrangements have yet been made for the funeral, although the remains will be laid to rest beside those of her husband in Spring Hill cemetery, Wells-ville, probably tomorrow.

Mrs. Louisa Baker.

Mrs. Louisa Baker, of Signal, who has been suffering with typhoid fever
for some time, died Sunday morning.
She leaves a husband and eight chilren.

STOLEN HORSE FOUND

LOCAL POLICE MADE AN IMPORT-ANT FIND.

While Looking for One Missing Horse
They Found Another.
No Arrests.

Mayor Davidson and Chief Thompson found a horse this morning at the Crest farm, about two miles from this city out the Lisbon road, which was supposed to have been stolen from Damascus. It was later learned that the horse was not the one wanted, but the officers located another animal which is believed to be the stolen one at Sid Starkey's stables on Third street. Starkey's son claimed to have bought the horse for $15, together with a buggy, from a man named Buzzard, but the supposed thief has not yet been located.

Buzzard lives at Sebring and is said to have been formerly in the reform school. He hired the rig of A.
E. Pierce, of Damascus, to go to Salem, but did not go there. Pierce is on his way to East Liverpool to claim the rig.

STEAM PIPE BURST

At Taylor, Smith & Taylor Pottery,
But No One Was Injured.

A steam pipe in the slip house at the Taylor, Smith & Taylor pottery burst last night at 5 o'clock. The pipe was hung on a nail at the side of the building, but owing to a belt which was near, it was impossible to give it any other support. It is used to carry the return water to the boiler and the weight was too much for it and it burst. Had the accident happened a few minutes sooner the men employed in the slip house would have been badly scalded. Except for the pipe no other damage was done.

Robbed in the Night.

Sherman Reed, a cook at the Arcade restaurant, is minus a razor and other articles of value, which he claims were stolen from him last night. He does not know who committed the theft, but the police have a clue and expect to capture the cultury party tonight.

POTTERY NEWS

The case of Lottie Clendenning vs.
the American China company will be tried in common pleas court, Jefferson county, this week. A number of Toronto witnesses have been subpoenaed in this case. Miss Clendenning received an injury to her arm while at work at the plant and sues to recover damages.

Howard Hull left yesterday afternoon for a western trip in the interest of the E. M. Knowles pottery.

Mrs. L. C. Swank has resigned her position as finisher at the Burford plant.

Miss Nettie Cook has resigned her position as finisher at the East Liverpool.

The Discovery of Electricity.

Children rub together bits of amber
picked up from the ground and find
that when rubbed these small pieces of waxlike substance are excited to attract particles of light substances, like straws and feathers. Could anything
be more elementary or seemingly further removed from the mighty mechanical developments of the electrical powers which now surround us? Yet that simple frictional play was the
starting point of all we now possess
electrically. It lay by as a child's sport for ages—lay by for Sir Isaac Newton himself to look at, removed
only to a box with a glass lid containing paper figures, which would move
when the glass surface was excited by friction. A little later, and the flat
glass surface became a tube, a globe,
a globe revolving on a frame, a machine,
an electrical battery, and so steadily
onward until, each step marked by a gentle advancement upon advancement, lightning and thunder themselves were the inventions of man as well as of nature.

The Moors and Their Morals.

In appearance the Moors are a very fine race. For many generations their mothers have been chosen for their beauty. An active life in the saddle
has developed them physically and a splendid appearance is the result. In addition they have manners of unequalled suavity and polish, the result of early years spent in the harem.
They are so habituated to think well
of themselves as followers of the true
prophet that an uneasy conscience
never troubles them.

A man may be an utter scoundrel,
cruel and licentious, and yet be regarded as a saint if he is descended from
the prophet and conforms to the outward ceremonial of Islam. His brow
is frank and unclouded, his smile is
even benevolent, and yet it would be impossible to describe the details of his life. Such are the Moors—an interesting tableau vivant of many a chapter
in the book of Judges, or Samuel or
the Kings.—African Review.

EASY "SURE THINGS."

Some Propositions That It Is Safe to Bet Against.

There are many things which at first thought appear to be easy enough of accomplishment that it is pretty safe
to bet a man he cannot do. Most people know that the human hands are not strong enough to break a new laid egg
if the hands are clasped and the egg
laid endwise between the palms. It is said that the pressure required to break
an egg in this manner amounts to tons.

Among other safe bets is a wager
that a man cannot rise from a chair
without bending forward or putting his feet under the chair or outside of it.

Many a man will back himself to give
another a start of 50 yards in a dash
of 100, provided the man having the start hops all the way. But no runner,
however swift, can give that amount of
start to an ordinary man. For the first five yards they go at practically the same pace. Therefore the runner, to go 95 yards while the "hopper" goes 45,
would have to run more than twice as fast, and it would be a weak man who could not hop 45 yards at a pace equal
to 20 seconds for 100 yards, and that would mean that the runner in order to win would have to beat all previous records.

If a man boasts that his penknife is particularly sharp, ask him to cut with
one stroke of the blade one of those yellow ribbons, mostly of silk, which
come around bundles of cigars. In 999
cases out of 1,000 the knife is not sharp
enough to do this. It will cut through all the ribbon but the last strand, and
that will pull out long, and the more
he tries to cut it the longer it will pull
out.

It is safe to bet any one except a blind man that he cannot stand without support of any kind for five minutes at a stretch if he is thoroughly
blindfolded without moving his feet.
If he does not move his feet he is pretty sure to topple over in about a minute.

The Discovery of Electricity.

Children rub together bits of amber
picked up from the ground and find
that when rubbed these small pieces of
waxlike substance are excited to attract particles of light substances, like
straws and feathers. Could anything
be more elementary or seemingly further removed from the mighty mechanical developments of the electrical powers which now surround us? Yet
that simple frictional play was the
starting point of all we now possess
electrically. It lay by as a child's
sport for ages—lay by for Sir Isaac Newton himself to look at, removed
only to a box with a glass lid containing paper figures, which would move
when the glass surface was excited by
friction. A little later, and the flat
glass surface became a tube, a globe,
a globe revolving on a frame, a machine,
an electrical battery, and so steadily
onward until, each step marked by a
gentle advancement upon advancement, lightning and thunder themselves were the inventions of man as well as of nature.

The Moors and Their Morals.

In appearance the Moors are a very fine race. For many generations their mothers have been chosen for their beauty. An active life in the saddle
has developed them physically and a splendid appearance is the result. In addition, they have manners of unequaled suavity and polish, the result
of early years spent in the harem.
They are so habituated to think well
of themselves as followers of the true
prophet that an uneasy conscience
never troubles them.
A man may be an utter scoundrel,
cruel and licentious, and yet be regarded as a saint if he is descended from
the prophet and conforms to the outward ceremonial of Islam. His brow
is frank and unclouded, his smile is
even benevolent, and yet it would be impossible to describe the details of his life. Such are the Moors—an interesting tableau vivant of many a chapter
in the book of Judges, or Samuel or

EASY "SURE THINGS."

Some Propositions That It Is Safe to Bet Against.

There are many things which at first
thought appear to be easy enough of
accomplishment that it is pretty safe
to bet a man he cannot do. Most people
know that the human hands are not
strong enough to break a new laid egg
if the hands are clasped and the egg
laid endwise between the palms. It is said that the pressure required to break
an egg in this manner amounts to tons.
Among other safe bets is a wager
that a man cannot rise from a chair
without bending forward or putting his
feet under the chair or outside of it.

Many a man will back himself to give
another a start of 50 yards in a dash
of 100, provided the man having the
start hops all the way. But no runner,
however swift, can give that amount of
start to an ordinary man. For the first five yards they go at practically the
same pace. Therefore the runner, to go
95 yards while the "hopper" goes 45,
would have to run more than twice as
fast, and it would be a weak man who
could not hop 45 yards at a pace equal
to 20 seconds for 100 yards, and that
would mean that the runner in order to win would have to beat all previous
records.

If a man boasts that his penknife is particularly sharp, ask him to cut with
one stroke of the blade one of those
yellow ribbons, mostly of silk, which
come around bundles of cigars. In 999
cases out of 1,000 the knife is not sharp
enough to do this. It will cut through
all the ribbon but the last strand, and
he tries to cut it the longer it will pull
out.

It is safe to bet any one except a
blind man that he cannot stand with-
out support of any kind for five minutes at a stretch if he is thoroughly blinded without moving his feet. If he does not move his feet he is pretty

AN INTERSTATE CASE

In Which the Jurisdiction of the Chester Justice Is Questioned.

Several days ago Mrs. M. E. Laughlin, who runs a grocery store in the East End, appeared at the office of Squire Johnston and filed a suit of attachment against J. M. Shingleton, also of the East End, but who is employed at the E. M. Knowles pottery, for $11.12, claimed due for groceries. Mr. Shingleton's wages were attached and he secured the services of F. E. Grosshans, of East Liverpool, who appeared at the squire's office Friday and stated that the squire had no jurisdiction in the matter, as the contracting parties were non-residents of the state.

WORK AT THE MILL

Foundation for Cold Rolls And Engine Started This Morning.

Two more bricklayers were put to work at the mill this morning and work was started on the foundation for the cold rolls and the engine. The structural work for the tin house has been delayed for the past two days on account of new flues being needed in the engine, but it is expected to resume work tomorrow.

Hearing Postponed.

James Kauffman, who was arrested by Officer Goode for causing trouble at the boarding house of Mrs. Fricks, was not given a hearing last night. Squire W. C. Johnston was a little under the weather. Kauffman did not appear at the squire's office until 7 o'clock and as the squire had gone home he was told to appear next Saturday evening.

Prepared for Coon Hunting.

W. A. Slack returned home this morning from Pittsburg, bringing with him a valuable coon dog. Robert McElrath, superintendent of the street car lines, left this afternoon for a visit at his home at Carrollton taking the dog with him to give it a trial, as he is much for the sport of coon hunting.

New School House.

Work was started yesterday painting the new school house, and it is expected that the work will be completed by the last of this or the first of next week. The seats for the building have arrived.

The American Soldier.

That West Point is the best military school in the world is conceded by all impartial critics. Its methods transform the average raw youth into the honorable, refined and highly educated officer of our army. He is pre-eminent in the "habit of command," which, as a rule, he uses without any of the arrogance shown by officers of some of the armies of Europe, notably that of Germany. He is made to realize that he commands men who are as sensitive as they are brave and who appreciate and respect a character combining generosity, kindness, firmness and, above all else, physical and moral courage.

These traits of character are carefully cultivated at West Point, with a result that, besides having the best enlisted personnel, we have in the United States army, without question or doubt, the best trained and most capable gentlemen as officers.—Army and Navy Journal.

yards. Murphy gained two yards and Riley circled left end for 15 more. Murphy gained 15 and Hurney went around left end for the second touchdown. Barker kicked goal. Score 11 to 0.

Murphy gained 40 yards on the kick-off. Little downed Murphy back of the line for a loss of three yards and the ball went to the home team on a fumble. Godwin lost three yards and Booth was tackled back of the line for a loss of four more. Pope punted to McNery, who was downed by Stevenson before he could move. The visitors tried a quarterback kick, but it did not work, as Woods secured the ball and gained 10 yards before he was stopped. The home team could not make the necessary five yards in the three downs and the ball again went to the visitors. McMahon was tackled so hard by Stevenson that he was compelled to leave the game. Campbell taking his place. The remainder of the game was easy for the visitors, as they went through the line of the home team at will. The last touchdown was made shortly before time was called for the last half. Barker kicked to kick goal and the final score was 16 to 0.

SMALL VOLUME OF TRADING.

Predominance of Professional Operations Were Revealed in the Market Monday.

New York, Oct. 1.—The small volume of the trading Monday and the tendency of prices to retrace the earlier downward movement revealed the predominance of professional operations in the market. The dealings were less than half a million shares and the late hardening movement relieved approximately one-half of the early decline. There was no very urgent selling manifest at any period of the day, although the bears succeeded in uncovering stop-loss orders in sugar and to a smaller extent in Brooklyn Transit and Missouri Pacific. The first named stock fell an extreme 3½ and the other two 3 points. Declines reached 2 points or over in a number of other leading stocks, notably among the Pacifics, Southwesterns and Vanderbilts. There were declines of 2 to 4½ among the junior members of the last named group. Amalgamated Copper continued under some pressure, but the declines were resisted. The firm tone of the spot copper market in London helped the stock, and it closed with a net loss of 1½. Assertions were made in a demonstrative way that the United States Steel stocks were to be advanced this week on the ground of declaration to be made today of the regular quarterly dividends on both the common and the preferred stocks and on the presentation of a detailed statement of the finances of the company at today's meeting, but these intimations did not cause a rush to buy the stocks, speculators persisting in distrust of industrial stocks after the recent experience in Amalgamated Copper. Except for a rise in Pacific Mail no effect was produced by certain reports that were made, the apprehension hovering over the market that the community of interest is not in reality a concert of the financial powers, but only a balance of those powers. The October currency requirement kept uneasiness alive regarding the money market future, seemingly with little cause, as sterling exchange weakened Monday and New York exchange hardened at Chicago. The sub-treasury paid out Monday on account of gold deposited at Pacific coast points $1,944,774, and for the government bond redemption $1,250,000. The incoming French steamer also brought the $1,000,000 in gold which was engaged in Paris over a week ago. The market closed firm at the rally caused by covering of shorts. Railroad bonds were dull and irregular. Total sales, par value, $1,480,000.

United States 3s advanced ¼ and the old 4s and the refunding 2s ¾ per cent on the last call. The new 4s declined ½ per cent.

A Senate Committee Inquiring Into Charges Made by Major Hawkes.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The senate sub-committee of the committee on military affairs, consisting of Senators Hawley, chairman, Proctor, Burrows, Cockrell and Harris, began the investigation of charges against Lieutenant Colonel H. O. S. Heistand, of the army, in connection with the alleged Manila hemp combination. The charges were preferred by Major E. L. Hawkes, formerly a volunteer officer, and were deemed of sufficient seriousness to warrant an investigation by the senate. Colonel Heistand was present at the opening of the inquiry in company with his attorney, Charles W. Needham. The committee decided that the proceedings should be public, that course being regarded as the best for all concerned.

In brief, the charges against Colonel Heistand are that he, in connection with other officers in the army and some officers in the civil department of the government, attempted to form a combination to control the output of hemp from the Philippines, using their official positions and influence to further their ends. Major Hawkes preferred the charges to the secretary of war and also to the senate committee on military affairs. They were denied by those against whom the allegations were made. After some consideration, the senate by resolution authorized the investigation which began yesterday.

PROSPECTS GLOOMY

COLUMBIANA MINERS' STRIKE MAY LAST ALL WINTER.

Union Officials Coming to the County to Hold Mass Meetings.

Columbus, Oct. 1.—(Special)—There is absolutely no indication whatever that the big coal strike in Columbiana county will be settled soon. It will not be surprising if it lasts throughout the coming winter. Approximately 800 miners are out. As has been mentioned heretofore, the mines affected are located in and about East Palestine, Negley, New Waterford, Rogers and in Beaver county, Pa., just across the Ohio border line. The officials of the United Mine Workers' association meet regularly in this city and discuss ways and means to effect a settlement, but so far have accomplished very little.

Today President Haskins, Vice President Sullivan and Secretary Savage leave for Columbiana county, the two former officials to hold mass meetings in the strike districts and the latter to distribute funds among the miners. The men will be urged to keep up courage, stand by the union and for the good of the cause to use as far as possible union made products.

It is reported that many of the miners who were laid off during the dull season in the Massillon field are at work again. The trade prospect is such as to inspire the belief that from now until spring the majority of the mines of the state will be kept busy.

AN EXPLANATION.

If you'll make a diagnosis when you're feeling bad and dreary.

As you would with any everyday disease; If you'll simply question science as to why you're so alone and weary.

And everything seems dull and ill at ease, Perhaps you will discover, after devils' calculations,

The cause of all these symptoms which appall, And you'll smile as you reflect, in spite of various irritations,

You'll find a sign denoting neither sorrow nor contrition; A tear drop's not indicative of care.

They are products of the meteorological condition, Of extra moisture that is in the air.

So perhaps it's not in reason fortune's chance to be smiling; Or to vow life's store of happiness is small,

For when the sun comes out again, again we will be smiling; It's nothing but the weather after all.

How the Mysterious Sentences Are Prepared in Advance.

Spiritualistic slate writing, if cleverly done, always makes a marked impression on a magician's audience because it utterly baffles their efforts to detect the trick. They see a small cabinet suspended above the stage by means of cords or ribbons. It has an open front and is empty. The magician turns it around so that every part of it may be seen and taps it inside and out with his wand to show that it is hollow.

On a stand near by he has a small easel, a common school slate, a bottle of India ink with a quill pen in it and a few sheets of ordinary white writing paper. All these he passes around among the audience for examination. Then he fixes a sheet of the paper to the slate by means of wafers, places the slate on the easel and the easel in the cabinet, together with the bottle of ink, the latter having the pen still in it.

Having allowed the audience to see the articles thus arranged in the cabinet, he throws a large silk handkerchief over it. Mysterious sounds are immediately heard, and the cabinet shakes as if some living thing had entered it. When the sounds and the shaking cease, he removes the handkerchief, showing an inscription written in bold black letters on the paper and the pen not in the ink bottle, but lying on the bottom of the cabinet. He then removes the paper from the slate and passes it around for examination, when the writing is immediately recognized as having been done with India ink.

The explanation of the trick is simple. The writing was done in advance by the performer, the fluid used being a solution of sulphuric acid of the purest quality. To make the solution 50 drops of the concentrated acid are added to one ounce of filtered water. Writing done with this solution is invisible until exposed to heat. When so exposed, it comes out perfectly black, looking exactly like dried India ink.

The heat is applied by means of an electric current running over wire with which the slate is wound. The cords by which the cabinet is suspended conceal copper wires, which conduct the current to the slate. Black silk threads suitably attached enable the performer to make the sounds in the cabinet, to cause the cabinet to shake and to jerk the pen out of the ink bottle.

Several sheets of paper are prepared in advance, each with a different inscription, the performer telling one in succession from another by secretly marked pin pricks.—New York Herald.

Folding Linen in Holland.

Folding linen is an accomplishment in which each one of the women in Holland is expected to be proficient before she becomes mistress of a home. In Holland especially the folding of linen requires considerable skill and training. Much of their fabric is of the finest texture and quality, and they fashion the various pieces in ironing into birds, animals, flowers and all manner of artistic shapes. Their linen closets are often shown to visitors with the same pride that china closets are shown elsewhere.

In Which the Jurisdiction of the Chester Justice Is Questioned.

Several days ago Mrs. M. E. Laughlin, who runs a grocery store in the East End, appeared at the office of Squire Johnston and filed a suit of attachment against J. M. Shingleton, also of the East End, but who is employed at the E. M. Knowles pottery, for $11.12, claimed due for groceries. Mr. Shingleton's wages were attached and he secured the services of F. E. Grosshans, of East Liverpool, who appeared at the squire's office Friday and stated that the squire had no jurisdiction in the matter, as the contracting parties were non-residents of the state.

WORK AT THE MILL

Foundation for Cold Rolls And Engine Started This Morning.

Two more bricklayers were put to work at the mill this morning and work was started on the foundation for the cold rolls and the engine. The structural work for the tin house has been delayed for the past two days on account of new flues being needed in the engine, but it is expected to resume work tomorrow.

Hearing Postponed.

James Kauffman, who was arrested by Officer Goode for causing trouble at the boarding house of Mrs. Fricks, was not given a hearing last night. Squire W. C. Johnston was a little under the weather. Kauffman did not appear at the squire's office until 7 o'clock and as the squire had gone home he was told to appear next Saturday evening.

Prepared for Coon Hunting.

W. A. Slack returned home this morning from Pittsburg, bringing with him a valuable coon dog. Robert McElrath, superintendent of the street car lines, left this afternoon for a visit at his home at Carrollton taking the dog with him to give it a trial, as he is much for the sport of coon hunting.

The American Soldier.

That West Point is the best military school in the world is conceded by all impartial critics. Its methods transform the average raw youth into the honorable, refined and highly educated officer of our army. He is pre-eminent in his home at Pittsburg, after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Smith.

These traits of character are carefully cultivated at West Point, with a result that, besides having the best enlisted personnel, we have in the United States army, without question or doubt, the best trained and most capable gentlemen as officers. — Army and Navy Journal.

yards. Murphy gained two yards and Riley circled left end for 15 more. Murphy gained 15 and Hurney went around left end for the second touchdown. Barker kicked goal. Score 11 to 0.

Murphy gained 40 yards on the kickoff. Little downed Murphy back of the line for a loss of three yards and the ball went to the home team on a fumble. Godwin lost three yards and Booth was tackled back of the line for a loss of four more. Pope punted to McNery, who was downed by Stevenson before he could move. The visitors tried a quarterback kick, but it did not work, as Woods secured the ball and gained 10 yards before he was stopped. The home team could not make the necessary five yards in the three downs and the ball again went to the visitors. McMahon was tackled so hard by Stevenson that he was compelled to leave the game, Campbell taking his place. The remainder of the game was easy for the visitors, as they went through the line of the home team at will. The last touchdown was made shortly before time was called for the last half. Barker failed to kick goal and the final score was 16 to 0.

The teams lined up as follows:

National. Lyceum.
Godwin Left end Hurney
Holtz Left tackle Donnelly Stevenson Left guard Riley
Bucher Center Edkins
York Right guard Deacy
Kinney Right tackle McKeever
Little Right end McMahon Woods Quarterback Barker
Moore Left half Quinlan
Booth Right half McNery
Pope Fullback Brassel

Substitutions—J. Bucher for Kinney, Campbell for McMahon, Murphy for Brassel.

SMALL VOLUME OF TRADING.

Predominance of Professional Operations Were Revealed in the Market Monday.

New York, Oct. 1.—The small volume of the trading Monday and the tendency of prices to retrace the earlier downward movement revealed the predominance of professional operations in the market. The dealings were less than half a million shares and the late hardening movement retrieved approximately one-half of the early decline. There was no very urgent selling manifest at any period of the day, although the bears succeeded in uncovering stop-loss orders in sugar and to a smaller extent in Brooklyn Transit and Missouri Pacific. The first named stock fell an extreme 3 3/4 and the other two 3 points. Declines reached 2 points or over in a number of other leading stocks, notably among the Pacifics, Southwesterns and Vanderbilts. There were declines of 2 to 4 1/2 among the junior members of the last named group. Amalgamated Copper continued under some pressure, but the declines were resisted. The firm tone of the spot copper market in London helped the stock, and it closed with a net loss of 1 1/2. Assertions were made in a demonstrative way that the United States Steel stocks were to be advanced this week on the ground of declaration to be made today of the regular quarterly dividends on both the common and the preferred stocks and on the presentation of a detailed statement of the finances of the company at today's meeting, but these intimations did not cause a rush to buy the stocks, speculators persisting in distrust of industrial stocks after the recent experience in Amalgamated Copper. Except for a rise in Pacific Mail no effect was produced by certain reports that were made, the apprehension hovering over the market that the community of interest is not in reality a concert of the financial powers, but only a balance of those powers. The October currency requirement kept uneasiness alive regarding the money market future, seemingly with little cause, as sterling exchange weakened Monday and New York exchange hardened at Chicago. The sub-treasury paid out Monday on account of gold deposited at Pacific coast points $1,944,774, and for the government bond redemption $1,250,000. The incoming French steamer also brought the $1,000,000 in gold which was engaged in Paris over a week ago. The market closed firm at the rally caused by covering of shorts. Railroad bonds were dull and irregular. Total sales, par value, $1,480,000.

United States 3s advanced 1/8 and the old 4s and the refunding 2s 1/4 per cent on the last call. The new 4s declined 1/8 per cent.

A Senate Committee Inquiring Into Charges Made by Major Hawkes.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The senate sub-committee of the committee on military affairs, consisting of Senators Hawley, chairman, Proctor, Burrows, Cockrell and Harris, began the investigation of charges against Lieutenant Colonel H. O. S. Heistand, of the army, in connection with the alleged Manila hemp combination. The charges were preferred by Major E. L. Hawkes, formerly a volunteer officer, and were deemed of sufficient seriousness to warrant an investigation by the senate. Colonel Heistand was present at the opening of the inquiry in company with his attorney, Charles W. Needham. The committee decided that the proceedings should be public, that course being regarded as the best for all concerned.

In brief, the charges against Colonel Heistand are that he, in connection with other officers in the army and some officers in the civil department of the government, attempted to form a combination to control the output of hemp from the Philippines, using their official positions and influence to further their ends. Major Hawkes preferred the charges to the secretary of war and also to the senate committee on military affairs. They were denied by those against whom the allegations were made. After some consideration, the senate by resolution authorized the investigation which began yesterday.

PROSPECTS GLOOMY

Union Officials Coming to the County to Hold Mass Meetings.

Columbus, Oct. 1.—(Special).—There is absolutely no indication whatever that the big coal strike in Columbiana county will be settled soon. It will not be surprising if it lasts throughout the coming winter. Approximately 800 miners are out. As has been mentioned heretofore, the mines affected are located in and about East Palestine, Negley, New Waterford, Rogers and in Beaver county, Pa., just across the Ohio border line. The officials of the United Mine Workers' association meet regularly in this city and discuss ways and means to effect a settlement, but so far have accomplished very little.

Today President Haskins, Vice President Sullivan and Secretary Savage leave for Columbiana county, the two former officials to hold mass meetings in the strike districts and the latter to distribute funds among the miners. The men will be urged to keep up courage, stand by the union and for the good of the cause to use as far as possible union made products.

It is reported that many of the miners who were laid off during the dull season in the Massillon field are at work again. The trade prospect is such as to inspire the belief that from now until spring the majority of the mines of the state will be kept busy.

AN EXPLANATION.

If you'll make a diagnosis when you're feeling sad and dreary.

As you would with any everyday disease; If you'll simply question science as to why you're glum and weary.

And everything seems dull and ill at ease, Perhaps you will discover, after devils calculations,

The cause of all these symptoms which appal, And you'll smile as you reflect, in spite of various irritations,

That it's nothing but the weather after all.

You'll find a sigh denoting neither sorrow nor contrition; A tear drop's not indicative of care.

So perhaps it's not in reason fortune's chance to be reviling.

Or to your life's store of happiness is small, For when the sun comes out again, again we will be smiling;

It's nothing but the weather after all. —Washington Star.

How the Mysterious Sentences Are Prepared in Advance.

Spiritualistic slate writing, if cleverly done, always makes a marked impression on a magician's audience because it utterly baffles their efforts to detect the trick. They see a small cabinet suspended above the stage by means of cords or ribbons. It has an open front and is empty. The magician turns it around so that every part of it may be seen and taps it inside and out with his wand to show that it is hollow.

On a stand near by he has a small easel, a common school slate, a bottle of India ink with a quill pen in it and a few sheets of ordinary white writing paper. All these he passes around among the audience for examination. Then he fixes a sheet of the paper to the slate by means of wafers, places the slate on the easel and the easel in the cabinet, together with the bottle of ink, the latter having the pen still in it.

Having allowed the audience to see the articles thus arranged in the cabinet, he throws a large silk handkerchief over it. Mysterious sounds are immediately heard, and the cabinet shakes as if some living thing had entered it. When the sounds and the shaking cease, he removes the handkerchief, showing an inscription written in bold black letters on the paper and the pen not in the ink bottle, but lying on the bottom of the cabinet. He then removes the paper from the slate and passes it around for examination, when the writing is immediately recognized as having been done with India ink.

The explanation of the trick is simple. The writing was done in advance by the performer, the fluid used being a solution of sulphuric acid of the purest quality. To make the solution 50 drops of the concentrated acid are added to one ounce of filtered water. Writing done with this solution is invisible until exposed to heat. When so exposed, it comes out perfectly black, looking exactly like dried India ink.

The heat is applied by means of an electric current running over wire with which the slate is wound. The cords by which the cabinet is suspended conceal copper wires, which conduct the current to the slate. Black silk threads suitably attached enable the performer to make the sounds in the cabinet, to cause the cabinet to shake and to jerk the pen out of the ink bottle.

Several sheets of paper are prepared in advance, each with a different inscription, the performer telling one in script from another by secretly marked pin pricks. —New York Herald.

Both legs were burned so badly that the skin peeled off and he was also burned about the stomach. The burns are not dangerous.

INTERESTING MEETING

Important Matters Before Second Presbyterian Church Young People.

The young people of the Second Presbyterian church held a very interesting meeting at the church last evening. After transacting routine business the new committees, which were elected at the last meeting, were instructed as to their duties.

The advisability of having Dr. Beardsley, who is at present at the Y. M. C. A., deliver a series of lectures in the church, was next discussed. The matter was left in the hands of the social committee who will visit the various other churches and make the affair a union one. They will make their report at the meeting to be held at the home of Dr. F. E. Adams, St. George street, tonight.

Snails as Window Cleaners.

"An old colored woman selling snails," says the Philadelphia Record, "occasionally makes her appearance in South street, and sometimes she may also be found along Front street or Second street, up in the district that used to be known as the Northern Liberties. She carries an old basket in which the snails repose on freshly sprinkled leaves. These are not sold as food, but for cleaning the outside of window panes—an old practice still in vogue in Kensington. The snail is dampened and placed upon the glass, where it at once moves around and devours all insects and foreign matter, leaving the pane as bright and clear as crystal. There are old established business places in Kensington where the upper windows, when cleaned at all, are always cleaned by snails. There is also a fine market for snails among the owners of aquariums, as they keep the glass clean and bright."

SHOT HIM FATALLY

Beaver Falls Woman Fired at a Man Fighting With Her Husband.

Beaver Falls, Oct. 1.—James McCormick, adopted son of William Hansome of Beaver Falls, died yesterday morning at the Beaver Valley general hospital, New Brighton, from the effects of a gunshot wound in the right hip, received Saturday night at the hands of Mrs. Charles Kauffman, of Tenth avenue.

McCormick got intoxicated and tried to break into Kauffman's house. While the two men were fighting in the yard Kauffman called for his wife to help him, and she ran to his assistance with a shotgun. The men were then clinched and rolling on the ground. She placed the gun to McCormick's right hip and fired. When she learned the wound was fatal she became almost crazed.

Is Minus a Horse And Buggy, Which Is Thought to Have Been Stolen.

Sebring, Oct. 1.—A man giving his name as Ollie Bitner procured a horse and buggy at Miller's livery stable in this town Friday evening, promising to return the rig the same night. He stated that he was employed in one of the potteries and had urgent business in Alliance. He left here about 7:30 o'clock and since that time no trace of him or the rig has been found. On inquiry it was learned that no person answering to that name is employed or has been employed there.

Word has been sent to the police of all surrounding cities and towns. Bitner is described as being a man about 25 to 30 years of age, about 5 feet 10 inches in height, dark hair and eyes, with small mustache of a few weeks' growth.

YOUNGSTOWN FATALITY

Lining of Hot Coke Falls Through Bosh at Furnace With Serious Results.

Youngstown, Oct. 1.—While workmen were engaged at 5 o'clock yesterday morning at the Brier Hill furnace, which was closed down last week for repairs, the lining fell in, covering Thomas Parker and two Italians in the debris. Parker was badly injured and will probably be blinded for life. Of the Italians, John Bruto was fatally burned, and Angelo Peppo badly burned about the head.

Twelve men were employed cleaning out the furnace when there was a fall of hot coke, which rained through a large opening that had been made in the bosh. Nine of them escaped by rapid running. Bruto and Parker were taken to the hospital and Peppo removed to his home.

Some Cabinet Possibilities

Unless the administration of President Roosevelt is to differ from those of the other vice presidents who have unexpectedly succeeded to the chief executive office few of President McKinley's cabinet will retain their portfolios during the coming three years. Although Mr. Roosevelt has requested the official advisers of his predecessor to remain in office and they will do so for a time, speculation is already on foot concerning whom the president will appoint should changes become necessary or inevitable.

When in 1841 the first Harrison died in office and was succeeded by John Tyler, the cabinet of the former remained for a few months. Then, disagreeing with their new chief, they resigned in a body, with the exception of Daniel Webster, secretary of state. Webster left Tyler two years later. In 1850 President Taylor died after an administration extending over a year and a third. He was succeeded by Vice President Fillmore. The latter made up an entirely new cabinet, with the exception of the secretary of the interior, who retained his office for two months.

After Lincoln's assassination, in 1865, three members of his official family remained with President Johnson for about fifteen months, three kept their portfolios throughout his stormy term of office, and one, Secretary Stanton of the war department, stayed with Johnson until 1867 and for a short time in 1868.

When Chester A. Arthur stepped into Garfield's place in 1881, all the members of the cabinet of the dead president resigned, with the exception of Robert T. Lincoln, secretary of war. It will thus be seen that in the great majority of cases an incoming president has chosen his own advisers.

Within a very short time after President McKinley's death his cabinet offered, according to precedent, to resign their portfolios. President Roosevelt would not hear of this, requesting them to retain their offices, at least for some time. It has long been known that some of Mr. McKinley's secretaries had been desirous of retiring to private life. Secretary Hay is bowed down by grief over the recent loss of his promising son. Secretary Gage has suffered severely from the death of his wife and wishes to retire. Postmaster General Smith had resolved even before Mr. McKinley's death not to retain his office until the close of the adminis-

As President Roosevelt is a man of strong likes and dislikes and of decided personality, he has made many firm friends. Prominent among them is Henry Cabot Lodge, United States senator from Massachusetts. The president and Senator Lodge have been intimate for many years and possess much admiration for each other. They hold similar views as to many national and international matters, and the fact that each has written works on the history of the United States has naturally drawn them together.

Senator Lodge is only a few years older than the president. He has been the constant political adviser of the latter. It is quite probable that should a vacancy occur in the office of secretary of state Senator Lodge will be asked to fill it, thus becoming the American premier and successor to the presidency. It is not so certain, however, that Mr. Lodge would leave his seat in the senate to accept the office.

Both Secretary Long of the navy and Secretary of War Root are personal friends of Mr. Roosevelt. He has a very high opinion of the former, gained when he acted as Mr. Long's assistant in the navy department about four years ago. The new president's friendship with Secretary Root is close and intimate and extends back a number of years. Mr. Root has thus far expressed little or no desire to give up his portfolio, although his position at the head of the New York bar is immensely lucrative. Mr. Long has little liking for his office, but it is possible that both he and the secretary of war will be among the president's advisers all through his term.

Prominent among the president's friends, high in his esteem, is General Leonard Wood, the military governor of Cuba. In a magazine article published three years ago Mr. Roosevelt described General Wood, almost exhaustively the resources of the English language to his praise. General Wood's rise from the rank of captain in the army and medical adviser to the president in 1898 to a brigadier general and governor of Cuba in 1899 was meteoric, and it is within the bounds of possibility that the coming three years will see him seated in the cabinet of his warm personal friend.

Others of the president's friends who are sometimes spoken of as slated for cabinet positions are George Frederick William Holls and Professor Nicholas Murray Butler, both of New York. Mr. Holls is a lawyer and may succeed to the attorney generalship. He represented the United States as secretary of our delegation to The Hague peace conference, and his work there attracted international attention. He is a strong and able man and has had much experience as a traveler, lawyer, author and educator. Professor Butler fills the chair of philosophy and education in Columbia university and is one of the best known educators of the United States. He is a man of resourceful and strong character and striking personality.

tion should a vacancy occur. It is known that Mr. McKinley intended to reward him thus for his able and faithful services. Mr. Cortelyou earned unstated praise for his conduct of affairs during the trying days when Mr. McKinley lay dying. He has been requested to continue to act as secretary to the president, although it is believed to be Mr. Roosevelt's intention to appoint eventually his former secretary, Mr. William Loeb. It is certain that adequate provision of some sort will be made for Mr. Cortelyou.

Snails as Window Cleaners.

"An old colored woman selling snails," says the Philadelphia Record, "occasionally makes her appearance in South street, and sometimes she may also be found along Front street or Second street, up in the district that used to be known as the Northern Liberties. She carries an old basket in which the snails repose on freshly sprinkled leaves. These are not sold as food, but for cleaning the outside of window panes—an old practice still in vogue in Kensington. The snail is dampened and placed upon the glass, where it at once moves around and devours all insects and foreign matter, leaving the pane as bright and clear as crystal. There are old established business place in Kensington where the upper windows, when cleaned at all, are always cleaned by snails. There is also a fine market for snails among the owners of aquariums, as they keep the glass clean and bright."

Beaver Falls Woman Fired at a Man Fighting With Her Husband.

Beaver Falls, Oct. 1.—James McCormick, adopted son of William Hansome of Beaver Falls, died yesterday morning at the Beaver Valley general hospital, New Brighton, from the effects of a gunshot wound in the right hip, received Saturday night at the hands of Mrs. Charles Kauffman, of Tenth avenue.

McCormick got intoxicated and tried to break into Kauffman's house. While the two men were fighting in the yard Kauffman called for his wife to help him, and she ran to his assistance with a shotgun. The men were then clinched and rolling on the ground. She placed the gun to McCormick's right hip and fired. When she learned the wound was fatal she became almost crazed.

Is Minus a Horse And Buggy, Which Is Thought to Have Been Stolen.

Sebring, Oct. 1.—A man giving his name as Ollie Bitner procured a horse and buggy at Miller's livery stable in this town Friday evening, promising to return the rig the same night. He stated that he was employed in one of the potteries and had urgent business in Alliance. He left here about 7:30 o'clock and since that time no trace of him or the rig has been found. On inquiry it was learned that no person answering to that name is employed or has been employed there.

Word has been sent to the police of all surrounding cities and towns. Bitner is described as being a man about 25 to 30 years of age, about 5 feet 10 inches in height, dark hair and eyes, with small mustache of a few weeks' growth.

Lining of Hot Coke Falls Through Bosh at Furnace With Serious Results.

Youngstown, Oct. 1.—While workmen were engaged at 5 o'clock yesterday morning at the Brier Hill furnace, which was closed down last week for repairs, the lining fell in, covering Thomas Parker and two Italians in the debris. Parker was badly injured and will probably be blinded for life. Of the Italians, John Bruto was fatally burned, and Angelo Peppo badly burned about the head.

Twelve men were employed cleaning out the furnace when there was a fall of hot coke, which rushed through a large opening that had been made in the bosh. Nine of them escaped by rapid running. Bruto and Parker were taken to the hospital and Peppo removed to his home.

Some Cabinet Possibilities

Unless the administration of President Roosevelt is to differ from those of the other vice presidents who have unexpectedly succeeded to the chief executive office few of President McKinley's cabinet will retain their portfolios during the coming three years. Although Mr. Roosevelt has requested the official advisers of his predecessor to remain in office and they will do so for a time, speculation is already on foot concerning whom the president will appoint should changes become necessary or inevitable.

mained for a few months. Then, disagreeing with their new chief, they resigned in a body, with the exception of Daniel Webster, secretary of state. Webster left Tyler two years later in 1850 President Taylor died after an administration extending over a year and a third. He was succeeded by Vice President Fillmore. The latter made up an entirely new cabinet, with the exception of the secretary of the interior, who retained his office for two months.

After Lincoln's assassination, in 1865, three members of his official family remained with President Johnson for about fifteen months, three kept their portfolios throughout his stormy term of office, and one, Secretary Stanton of the war department, stayed with Johnson until 1867 and for a short time in 1868.

When Chester A. Arthur stepped into Garfield's place in 1881, all the members of the cabinet of the dead president resigned, with the exception of Robert T. Lincoln, secretary of war. It will thus be seen that in the great majority of cases an incoming president has chosen his own advisers.

Within a very short time after President McKinley's death his cabinet offered, according to precedent, to resign their portfolios. President Roosevelt would not hear of this, requesting them to retain their offices, at least for some time. It has long been known that some of Mr. McKinley's secretaries had been desirous of retiring to private life. Secretary Hay is bowed down by grief over the recent loss of his promising son. Secretary Gage has suffered severely from the death of his wife and wishes to retire. Postmaster General Smith had resolved even before Mr. McKinley's death not to retain his office until the close of the administration.

tration. Attorney General Knox accepted an appointment only at a great sacrifice as a personal friend of Mr. McKinley. Others of the present cabinet hold similar views.

As President Roosevelt is a man of strong likes and dislikes and of decided personality, he has made many firm friends. Prominent among them is Henry Cabot Lodge, United States senator from Massachusetts. The president and Senator Lodge have been intimate for many years and possess much admiration for each other. They hold similar views as to many national and international matters, and the fact that each has written works on the history of the United States has naturally drawn them together.

Senator Lodge is only a few years older than the president. He has been the constant political adviser of the latter. It is quite probable that should a vacancy occur in the office of secretary of state Senator Lodge will be asked to fill it, thus becoming the American premier and successor to the presidency. It is not so certain, however, that Mr. Lodge would leave his seat in the senate to accept the office.

Both Secretary Long of the navy and Secretary of War Root are personal friends of Mr. Roosevelt. He has a very high opinion of the former, gained when he acted as Mr. Long's assistant in the navy department about four years ago. The new president's friendship with Secretary Root is close and intimate and extends back a number of years. Mr. Root has thus far expressed little or no desire to give up his portfolio, although his position at the head of the New York bar is immensely lucrative. Mr. Long has little liking for his office, but it is possible that both he and the secretary of war will be among the president's advisers all through his term.

Prominent among the president's friends, high in his councils and deep in his esteem, is General Leonard Wood, the military governor of Cuba. In a magazine article published three years ago Mr. Roosevelt described General Wood, almost exhausting the resources of the English language to his praise. General Wood's rise from the rank of captain in the army and medical adviser to the president in 1898 to a brigadier general and governor of Cuba in 1899 was meteoric, and it is within the bounds of possibility that the coming three years will see him seated in the cabinet of his warm personal friend.

Others of the president's friends who are sometimes spoken of as slated for cabinet positions are George Frederick William Hollis and Professor Nicholas Murray Butler, both of New York. Mr. Hollis is a lawyer and may succeed to the attorney generalship. He represented the United States as secretary of our delegation to The Hague peace conference, and his work there attracted international attention. He is a strong and able man and has had much experience as a traveler, lawyer, author and educator. Professor Butler fills the chair of philosophy and education in Columbia university and is one of the best known educators of the United States. He is a man of resourceful and strong character and striking personality.

ATTACK IS DOUBTED.

Biddle Said He Believed Private
Deprend Deceived Himself
as to Attempt

ON TOMB OF LATE PRESIDENT.

The Common Belief Was That the Sentinel, Overwrought by Loneli-
ness and Nerves Overtaxed, Imagined Some of the Details.

Canton, O., Oct. 1.—The officers and men of Company C, of the Fourteenth United States infantry, on duty at West Lawn cemetery, guarding the resting place of President McKinley, worked diligently investigating the strange story in which Private Deprend, who was on duty at the top of the vault, Sunday night, figured so prominently. The same reticence, imposed by military regulations, which prevented the officers and men from making detailed statements concerning the incidents, was operative. From interviews with the command officer, several non-commissioned officers and a number of privates the following was gathered:

All the command officers and the members of the company in general accepted fully the story related by Private Deprend Sunday night, and really believed that the prowlers were about the vault with no good purpose. Monday only one of the command officers adhered to the belief that an attempt had been made upon the sentinel for ghoulish purposes. He said: "It was the real thing. It was prompted by the pure cussedness of some people, who thought to bring reproach upon the nation by doing damage to the resting place of the dead president."

Think He Acted In Good Faith.

All the men who were seen expressed the belief that Private Deprend acted in good faith, and that he related only what he believed to be the real facts. With the captain and others he went over the details of the whole affair at least a dozen times, and, it is said, he did not vary in a matter of importance. Particular inquiry was made as to his sobriety at the time, and it is said that it is established beyond all reasonable doubt that he had not been drinking and that he was in his normal condition. The most common belief is that the sentinel was overwrought by the loneliness of his position; that his nerves were overtaxed, and that his imagination contributed some of the details related in good faith. The post was regarded by all as particularly isolated and depressing to the man guarding it at night, and it is understood that more sentinels will be stationed at the point in the future.

Captain Biddle thanked the reporters for what he called the fair manner in which the incident had been described in the morning papers Monday, saying that they gave a full statement of facts, so far as revealed Sunday night. He was fully convinced Sunday night of the story as related, but after investigation, entertained doubts, not of the sincerity of Private Deprend, but as to the correctness of the conclusions. Captain Biddle authorized this statement:

"I think the sentinel deceived himself as to the occurrence. I do not think an actual attack, as related by him, occurred. When daylight came no evidence of a struggle was found."

The matter has been reported in full to General Otis at Chicago, commanding the department to which the guard is attached. Whether there will be a formal inquiry into the matter remains for General Otis to determine. Officers at the cemetery expressed the hope that, inasmuch as no actual harm had been done, no formal action would be taken.

Sergeant Cook, who is also known as Sergeant Koch, through the mis-spelling of his name on one of the rolls, and who was reported to have heard remarks Sunday afternoon among visitors, further explained as follows:

Sergeant Cook Explains.

"I was on duty at the guard tent, near the vault, Sunday afternoon. There were three funerals at the cemetery and many people passing all the time. Three men, representative looking men, such as come by the score every day, spoke to me. One asked how long the sentinels in front of the vault gates were kept on duty and I told him half an hour at a time. He said he had read that they were kept there two hours and thought that was hard service. I told him that at first they were kept there two hours, but that the time had been shortened. He asked if there were other guards. I told him there were several on the hill over the vault and at other places. The second man said he did not see the use of all this fuss; that no one would try to do any harm now. The third man said he was mistaken; that there were lots of people who would like to see the whole thing blown up. No, I had not then, nor have I now, any suspicion that any of these men would have any interest in or would sympathize with any act of violence. I think they were speaking of the disposition of other classes who might be prompted to do such acts."

The usual guard and patrol was on duty Monday. Sunday night, after the story of Private Deprend, the force was increased by the addition of 10 men.

WHAT ANIMAL IS THIS COWBOY LASSOING?

A FALSE REMEDY.

Democratic Cure For Trusts Is Free Trade Again.

CONGRESSIONAL ACTS RECALLED.

When the Democrats Were In Power
In Congress They Failed to Touch
the Trusts.

"We demand the suppression of all trusts" as an excellent plank in the Ohio Democratic platform, save that it lacks one vital essential—a working plan for accomplishing its demand. Its very vagueness is to its authors its beauty as a political declaration, because such uncertainty leaves everything to the imagination. It is eminently characteristic of the Democracy, which is always great in platform denunciation and absolutely short on practical legislation.

This time the McLean platform proposes what it pretends to think is a remedy by asking that "all trust products should be placed on the free list." In fact, free trade of the good old Democratic kind is once more paramount with that party, for an earlier plank reiterates the claim, for which no proof has ever been supplied, that "the existence and abuses of trusts have been brought about by the policy of protection of favored industries." Assuming the truth of this frequent but never-supported statement, the Ohio Democrats go on to demand "the abolition of the so-called protective system and the substitution in its place of the traditional Democratic policy of a tariff for revenue."

Thus we have free trade as the only Democratic remedy for trusts. In this that party is truly "traditional," for, while "paramount issues" may come and "paramount issues" go, campaign after campaign, free trade and state rights "go on forever."

In 1894 William J. Bryan introduced in congress two bills providing for placing trust-made articles on the free list. The Democrats controlled that congress, and Bryan belonged to the Ways and Means committee, to which his bills were referred; but that committee never did anything with them. What the committee did was to report the Wilson-Gorman tariff bill, with the preferential tariff perpetuating the Sugar trust by 10 per cent in its favor, amounting to many millions of dollars. This was the bill that President Cleveland refused to sign, calling it a measure of "perfidy and dishonor." It became a law in spite of him, including a law in spite of him, including this discrimination of 10 per cent in favor of the Sugar trust, that was as good as a gift to that great corporation throughout the entire three years of the Wilson tariff, taxing every pound of sugar that the people ate for the benefit of this trust.

Again, in that bill the Democrats set up some semblance of provision against combinations that interfered with foreign commerce, but did not make any against combinations that interfered with local production or manufacture, while one is precisely as injurious as the other, save that those that relate to domestic interests are the ones that concern our own people most of all.

That time, therefore, the Democrats did nothing against domestic trusts, though all the power was in their hands; and from that day to this, for seven long years, they have done nothing in congress except to prevent anybody else from doing anything. Is not this fact the very best confirmation of the declaration in the Ohio Republican platform that the Republican party is the only one that "can be safely trusted to deal with this problem," because "the only legislation, national or in Ohio, on this subject, has been enacted by the Republican party?"

Organized labor may well take care to remember some important facts of recent Ohio history of direct concern to its membership. One is that the bill providing for boards of arbitration passed the house on April 3, 1886, with 30 votes cast against it, all by Democrats. The other is that the department of labor was organized under the bill that passed the house on April 19, 1888, and the senate May 23 of the same year. All the votes cast against the bill in both branches of the legislature were Democratic.

During August the public debt of the United States showed a decrease of $5,460,597, with a total aggregate of cash on hand of $1,898,849,459, and a cash balance above all liabilities of $329,971,355. Contrast this with the condition of things under the last Democratic administration of free trade attempted and free silver threatened, and the United States government borrowing money in a time of peace to pay its current expenses.

Just as one incident of the prevailing prosperity is the fact that for the cotton year just ended, the South received $494,567,549 beyond any preceding year. There was a big crop with big prices, and it was the general prosperity that made the demand that put up the prices.

Jobbers and manufacturers report, says a regular trade review, that orders for fall goods have exceeded any previous year, with noticeable demand for the better grades. Will Ohio vote to undo such prosperity?

Silver coinage keeps up right along, the aggregate for August being $3,141,000 standard dollars. The gold coinage for the month was $6,780,000.

POLITICAL COMMENT.

Five years ago in Ohio Democracy was swallowed up in Populism. Now the Democracy is trying to ignore Populism.—Cleveland Leader.

Col. Kilbourne's literary bureau is sending out letters to old soldiers and asking them to support Kilbourne because he was in the war. That is a clever card, but old soldiers have not forgotten that Governor Nash was as much of a soldier as Kilbourne, and, further, he has, since the war, made a record which Kilbourne cannot claim to equal.—Marion Chronicle.

The Republicans of Ohio will ask the people of Ohio to stand by the McKinley administration as typified by the new president—and they will do it.—Ohio State Journal.

Colonel Kilbourne is likely to go down into history as the man who, in 1901, broke all records in having an adverse political majority piled up against him.—Ohio State Journal.

The yellow journals are in disgrace and losing the few friends they formerly had.—East Liverpool News-Review.

The Ohio Democratic committee is endeavoring to stampede the soldier vote to Kilbourne by sending circular letters addressed to every veteran in the state. The weakness of this attempt lies in the fact that each and every argument set forth in favor of Mr. Kilbourne is equally applicable to Hon. George K. Nash, whose soldier record is without blemish.

The anarchists under arrest in Chicago preferred to remain in jail to being freed by habeas corpus, and to take their chances of being shot down like mad dogs by a mob of citizens. They are utterly inconsistent. They should be willing to let other people act upon the anarchist theory of killing people who are personally obnoxious.

Best Butter in the World.

The butter of Denmark is considered superior to that of all other countries. It brings the highest price in fancy markets and can be found all over the world in shops where luxuries are sold. In South America, South Africa, in the East and West Indies, in India, Egypt and in tropical countries generally it is used by epicures, who pay $1 a pound for it in this one, two and three pounds' weight. No other country has been able to produce butter that will stand changes of climate so well.

Refrigerator ships are now found on nearly all the big steamship routes, and they can carry perishables as long and as far as necessary, but butter shipped by the ordinary cargo steamer usually melts and remains in a liquid state as long as it is exposed to the tropic heat. When it passes into the temperate zone again, it hardens, and the change usually spoils it for the taste, entirely destroying the flavor and leaving it like ordinary grease or oil. The Danes, however, produce a butter which will endure this ordeal without affecting its flavor or sweetness, and they are the only people of whom this may be said.—Chicago Herald.

The Destructive Porpoise.

Seeing that an ordinary porpoise is from five to six feet in length and will require some 500 ordinary mackerel or their equivalent per week to keep it in fair condition—and there cannot be less than 20,000 to 30,000 of these creatures living in British and Irish waters—the drain upon the shoals of mackerel living in these seas from this source alone must be enormous, for if these creatures only feed on them one-half of the year about 400,000,000 mackerel must be destroyed without man or beast receiving any equivalent. These animals are not easily taken in hand, being so intelligent and active. I believe I am safe in saying there were extensive fisheries carried on for them in the sixteenth century at St. Mawes and Fowey, Cornwall, and in most of the narrow harbors of Britain, their flesh being highly valued by the gentry in those days, but now nothing of them is appropriated to man's use in England.—Contemporary Review.

How Sponges Are Sold.

When offered for sale in the local market in the Bahamas, sponges are either piled up loose or made into strands or beads of from two to ten sponges each. The best sponges are usually made into strings of from eight to ten sponges each. Others are generally sold in lots not strung. The buyer, however, is not guided in his purchase by the number of sponges on a string, but by what a certain lot will weigh, and the weight is never given, but the buyer must estimate it; hence practical experience is needed in the purchasing of sponges.

ATTACK IS DOUBTED.

Biddle Said He Believed Private
Deprend Deceived Himself

The Common Belief Was That the Sentinel, Overwrought by Loneli-
ness and Nerves Overtaxed, Imagined Some of the Details.

Canton, O., Oct. 1.—The officers and men of Company C, of the Fourteenth United States Infantry, on duty at West Lawn cemetery, guarding the resting place of President McKinley, worked diligently investigating the strange story in which Private Deprend, who was on duty at the top of the vault, Sunday night, figured so prominently. The same reticence, imposed by military regulations, which prevented the officers and men from making detailed statements concerning the incidents, was operative. From interviews with the command officer, several non-commissioned officers and a number of privates the following was gathered:

All the command officers and the members of the company in general accepted fully the story related by Private Deprend Sunday night, and really believed that the provokers were about the vault with no good purpose. Monday only one of the command officers adhered to the belief that an attempt had been made upon the sentinel for ghastly purposes. He said: "It was the real thing. It was prompted by the pure cussedness of some people, who thought to bring reproach upon the nation by doing damage to the resting place of the dead president."

Think He Acted In Good Faith.

All the men who were seen expressed the belief that Private Deprend acted in good faith, and that he related only what he believed to be the real facts. With the captain and others he went over the details of the whole affair at least a dozen times, and, it is said, he did not vary in a matter of importance. Particular inquiry was made as to his sobriety at the time, and it is said that it is established beyond all reasonable doubt that he had not been drinking and that he was in his normal condition. The most common belief is that the sentinel was overwrought by the loneliness of his position; that his nerves were overtaxed, and that imagination contributed some of the details related in good faith. The post was regarded by all as particularly isolated and depressing to the man guarding it at night, and it is understood that more sentinels will be stationed at the point in the future.

Captain Biddle thanked the reporters for what he called the fair manner in which the incident had been described in the morning papers Monday, saying that they gave a full statement of facts, so far as revealed Sunday night. He was fully convinced Sunday night of the story as related, but after investigation, entertained doubts, not of the sincerity of Private Deprend, but as to the correctness of the conclusions. Captain Biddle authorized this statement:

"I think the sentinel deceived himself as to the occurrence. I do not think an actual attack, as related by him, occurred. When daylight came no evidence of a struggle was found."

The matter has been reported in full to General Otis at Chicago, commanding the department to which the guard is attached. Whether there will be a formal inquiry into the matter remains for General Otis to determine. Officers at the cemetery expressed the hope that, inasmuch as no actual harm had been done, no formal action would be taken.

Sergeant Cook, who is also known as Sergeant Koch, through the misreading of his name on one of the rolls, and who was reported to have heard remarks Sunday afternoon among visitors, further explained as follows:

Sergeant Cook Explains.

"I was on duty at the guard tent, near the vault, Sunday afternoon. There were three funerals at the cemetery and many people passing all the time. Three men, representative looking men, such as come by the score every day, spoke to me. One asked how long the sentinels in front of the vault gates were kept on duty and I told him half an hour at a time. He said he had read that they were kept there two hours and thought that was hard service. I told him that at first they were kept there two hours, but that the time had been shortened. He asked if there were other guards. I told him there were several on the hill over the vault and at other places. The second man said he did not see the use of all this fuss; that no one would try to do any harm now. The third man said he was mistaken; that there were lots of people who would like to see the whole thing blown up. No, I had not then, nor have I now, any suspicion that any of these men would have any interest in or would sympathize with any act of violence. I think they were speaking of the disposition of other classes who might be prompted to do such acts."

The usual guard and patrol was on duty Monday. Sunday night, after the story of Private Deprend, the force was increased by the addition of 10 men.

Democratic Cure For Trusts Is Free Trade Again.

CONGRESSIONAL ACTS RECALLED.

When the Democrats Were in Power
In Congress They Failed to Touch
the Trusts.

"We demand the suppression of all trusts" as an excellent plank in the Ohio Democratic platform, save that it lacks one vital essential—a working plan for accomplishing its demand. Its very vagueness is to its authors its beauty as a political declaration, because such uncertainty leaves everything to the imagination. It is eminently characteristic of the Democracy, which is always great in platform denunciation and absolutely short on practical legislation.

This time the McLean platform proposes what it pretends to think is a remedy by asking that "all trust products should be placed on the free list." In fact, free trade of the good old Democratic kind is once more paramount with that party, for an earlier plank reiterates the claim, for which no proof has ever been supplied, that "the existence and abuses of trusts have been brought about by the policy of protection of favored industries." Assuming the truth of this frequent but never-supported statement, the Ohio Democrats go on to demand "the abolition of the so-called protective system and the substitution in its place of the traditional Democratic policy of a tariff for revenue."

Thus we have free trade as the only Democratic remedy for trusts. In this that party is truly "traditional," for, while "paramount issues" may come and "paramount issues" go, campaign after campaign, free trade and state rights "go on forever."

In 1894 William J. Bryan introduced in congress two bills providing for placing trust-made articles on the free list. The Democrats controlled that congress, and Bryan belonged to the Ways and Means committee, to which his bills were referred; but that committee never did anything with them. What the committee did was to report the Wilson-Gorman tariff bill, with the preferential tariff perpetuating the Sugar trust by 10 per cent in its favor, amounting to many millions of dollars. This was the bill that President Cleveland refused to sign, calling it a measure of "perfidy and dishonor." It became a law in spite of him, including this discrimination of 10 per cent in favor of the Sugar trust, that was as good as a gift to that great corporation throughout the entire three years of the Wilson tariff, taxing every pound of sugar that the people ate for the benefit of this trust.

Again, in that bill the Democrats set up some semblance of provision against combinations that interfered with foreign commerce, but did not make any against combinations that interfered with local production or manufacture, while one is precisely as injurious as the other, save that those that relate to domestic interests are the ones that concern our own people most of all.

That time, therefore, the Democrats did nothing against domestic trusts, though all the power was in their hands; and from that day to this, for seven long years, they have done nothing in congress except to prevent anybody else from doing anything. Is not this fact the very best confirmation of the declaration in the Ohio Republican platform that the Republican party is the only one that "can be safely trusted to deal with this problem," because "the only legislation, national or in Ohio, on this subject, has been enacted by the Republican party?"

Organized labor may well take care to remember some important facts of recent Ohio history of direct concern to its membership. One is that the bill providing for boards of arbitration passed the house on April 3, 1886, with 30 votes cast against it, all by Democrats. The other is that the department of labor was organized under the bill that passed the house on April 19, 1888, and the senate May 23 of the same year. All the votes cast against the bill in both branches of the legislature were Democratic.

During August the public debt of the United States showed a decrease of $5,460,597, with a total aggregate of cash on hand of $1,898,840,453, and a cash balance above all liabilities of $329,971,355. Contrast this with the condition of things under the last Democratic administration of free trade attempted and free silver threatened, and the United States government borrowing money in a time of peace to pay its current expenses.

Just as one incident of the prevailing prosperity is the fact that for the cotton year just ended, the South received $494,567,549 beyond any preceding year. There was a big crop with big prices, and it was the general prosperity that made the demand that put up the prices.

Jobbers and manufacturers report, says a regular trade review, that orders for fall goods have exceeded any previous year, with noticeable demand for the better grades. Will Ohio vote to undo such prosperity?

Silver coinage keeps up right along, the aggregate for August being 3,141,000 standard dollars. The gold coinage for the month was $6,780,000.

MILL SHUT DOWN

Cars Delayed on the Road Stop the Lisbon Tin Plant.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—(Special)—Eleven carloads of tin bars are lost, have strayed or been stolen between New Castle, Pa., and Lisbon. They were shipped last week to the tin mill here and have not been heard from. In consequence the mill was forced to shut down.

Manager Baldwin thinks the cars will be found today and the plant will be able to resume tonight or tomorrow. It has been idle since Saturday night.

At the Theater.

The Irene Myers Superb Stock company opened a week's engagement at the Grand opera house last evening by presenting "The Electrician." The play gave universal satisfaction and the high esteem with which this company is held was evidenced by the sale of tickets which began Friday. Standing room was at a premium before the curtain rose. Tonight the company presents a comedy drama in five acts, entitled "The Stowaway," with Irene Myers as the newsboy.

Escaped From Infirmary.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—Elisha French has escaped from the county infirmary and cannot be found. French has been an inmate of the institution for several years and this makes the third time he has escaped. He was sent there from Salem, but his parents reside in Belmont county.

On Trial for Murder.

The trial of "Bud" Taylor was called in the county court at Kansas City on last Thursday. Taylor is a ball player, well known here, who lay in wait for and shot his sweetheart, Ruth Nollards.

SALEM CONVICT BADLY INJURED

Harry Kemp, Burglar, Meets With a Painful Accident in the Penitentiary.

TOPICS AT STATE CAPITAL

Interesting Relics of Anti-Slavery Days—A Convict Found Armed. One Name Will Have to Be Crossed From List of Campaign Orators.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, Oct. 1.—The Columbiana county prisoners at the penitentiary must have been born under an unusually unlucky star, as scarcely a week passes but one or more of them is overtaken by misfortune. The latest victim is Harry Kemp, colored, whose home is in Salem. He is employed in the stamping shop, and while working a die was painfully injured. He was using a steel punch which was broken by the machine, a fragment of the tool flying up and entering his neck dangerously near to the jugular vein. Kemp was hurried to the prison hospital and a probe inserted in the wound. The metal was found to be firmly embedded in the flesh, and as yet has not been removed.

The examining physician is of the opinion that it would not cause Kemp much inconvenience, and as it would be hazardous to attempt to remove it by cutting, the operation will probably not be held.

Kemp was received at the penitentiary on May 15, 1901, to serve three years for burglary. If he does not violate any of the rules he can obtain his freedom at the expiration of his short term which will be July 26, 1903. Kemp was convicted of robbing the residence of Mrs. Furman Gee, at Lincoln avenue and Franklin street, Salem, last winter. An officer saw him leaving the premises and commanded him to halt. Instead of heeding Kemp darted down the street like a streak, but a bullet beat him out and bowled him over. The shot took effect in the heel. Kemp's conviction was easy.

State Librarian C. B. Galbreath has secured a large collection of anti-slavery papers during his incumbency and has just learned of the whereabouts of a large number of early newspapers that exerted a powerful influence against the institution of slavery when the fight against it was in its embryonic stages. These papers are in New Hampshire and Mr. Galbreath is confident he can secure possession of them. They will be added to the collection on file in the state library. Some of the strongest anti-slavery papers were published in Ohio, and not a few of these in Columbiana county. The Anti-Slavery Bugle, of Columbiana county, was one of the pioneer publications of the kind in the country, and wielded considerable influence.

Two loaded revolvers were found in the possession of a convict named Tom Carter, serving 20 years for manslaughter, in the penitentiary. Carter has been filling a clerkship in the office of Secretary Cook, of the penitentiary board of managers, and has always been looked upon as a "trustee." The discovery of the weapons is regarded as one of great importance and has doubtless been the means of saving the lives of one or more guards, for the reason that the guns would have been used by desperate prisoners in an attempt to effect an escape. A box of cartridges was found in Carter's cell. Carter has been reduced to the third grade, assessed 100 days good time and has been placed at hard manual labor.

Governor Shaw, of Iowa, one of the best campaign orators in the west, and a personal friend of Governor Nash, will spend a week in Ohio with the governor. They will speak from the same platform. Governor Shaw's services are in great demand all over the country. President Roosevelt, when vice president, accepted an invitation from the Republican committee to take a speaking part in the campaign in this state, but his accession to the exalted position of chief executive of the United States will, of course, prevent his appearance here. As far as is known there is no record of a president ever having gone on the stump, and it is not expected that President Roosevelt will violate this precedent, which public sentiment holds should be immutable. The Democratic committee has formulated a list of Ohio speakers, which it hopes to press into commission this fall. The list includes the names General Isaac Sherwood, of Toledo, formerly of the Eighteenth district; Ex-Mayor E. H. Moore, of Youngstown, who has a reputation for spellbinding; Judge Abe Patrick, of New Philadelphia, and

Messrs. John C. Welty and James A. Rice, of Canton.

ACTED UPON ADVICE

Defense of Huber Treffinger, Accused of Destroying Mail Boxes.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—(Special)—Ed F. Moore, of Lisbon, and John Patterson, a farmer near here, are at Cleveland today before the United States grand jury in the case of Huber Treffinger, charged with tearing down mail boxes. Treffinger was arrested some time ago and placed under bond for the alleged offense. His side of the case puts him in a new light. It appears that he was acting under advice from a high source when he removed the mail boxes which had been placed by Patterson alongside the public road on Treffinger's land.

C. C. Connell, Treffinger's attorney, intimates that the defense has a card in its sleeve which it can depend on.

Two Families Depart From the City For a New Home.

The household goods of John H. Cook and L. C. Swank were yesterday shipped to Sweetwater, Tenn. Both gentlemen with their families left on the midnight train for Findlay, O., where they will visit for about three weeks. Leaving Findlay they will go direct to Sweetwater, where they intend to make their future home.

Mr. Swank will be accompanied by Ed Myers, a young lad who is homeless and who will reside with them. They have a large circle of friends. The Cartwright Bros., for whom Mr. Swank worked, together with the other employees, presented him a handsome dinner set yesterday morning.

Licensed to Marry.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—(Special)—Frederick Miller, of Bayard, and Cassie Taylor, of East Rochester; Elmer D. Gaston and Katie L. Strasser, of East Liverpool, have been licensed to marry.

John C. Cole and Mrs. Cassie A. Wilson, of Yellow Creek township, have been granted a license.

Laying Gas Mains.

COUNTERFEIT GOLD

GILDING POWDERS ARE MADE OF COPPER AND SVELTER.

How the Material That Gives the Shining, Metallic Finish to Mirror and Picture Frames Is Produced. Gold Leaf Without Gold.

How many persons who see the shining gold in colored printing and on mirror and picture frames know that gold does not enter at all into the composition of the stuff that produces these golden effects?

The shining metallic effect is produced by a fine powder made from a mixture of bronze and spelter. This offers the cheapest and best means of giving the rich surface demanded in wall papers, printing, lithography, frescoing and in a vast range of manufactured articles of wood, paper and iron.

The material used is so called Dutch metal, an alloy of copper and spelter. The relative proportions are varied to produce different colors. The larger the percentage of spelter the lighter or more yellowish will be the tint of the alloy.

The copper and spelter are smelted in graphite crucibles containing about 400 pounds of metal, which, when completely fused, is run off into molds, forming half round ingots two feet long by half an inch in thickness. After cooling these are bound into bundles and sent to the rolling mill, where they are passed cold nine times through a double set of steel rolls under enormous pressure. This flattens them and draws them out into thin ribbons from 50 to 60 feet long and something more than one inch wide. Cold rolling under such extreme pressure makes the metal brittle, so it passes to the annealing furnace, which is heated by wood fire, as the sulphur in coal or coke would be injurious to the ribbons.

Having been softened and rendered ductile by annealing, they are cleansed in an acid bath, cut into lengths of about three feet and collected in bundles of 40 or 50 strips each. They are laid between sheets of zinc and passed under hammers which beat the metal strips to the thinness of tissue paper. This requires six successive beatings, and great skill must be exercised to produce a uniform and unbroken foil. After the third beating the metal strips are taken from between the sheets of zinc, loosened from each other and cleansed by immersion in a bath of tartaric acid. The cleaning is repeated after the last beating, and the sheets are hung on lines to dry. In the beginning the rolled strips are a dull gray metallic color, at the fourth beating the yellowish color begins to show, and after the sixth they are clear and bright as gold.

The defective leaves are then thrown out and the perfect ones cut into small squares, which are laid together by hand in packets of several hundred each and inclosed within an envelope of sheet brass. The packets return to the annealing furnace, where they are softened by heating and slow cooling, and then go to the beaters, where they are reduced under flattening hammers to the thinness of real gold leaf, so thin that it can be blown away by the breath.

The manufacture of bronze powder consists in grading, clipping and pulverizing the various bronze foils to an even, impalpable powder and is an industry of comparatively recent date. It began as a means of using up and utilizing the imperfect leaves which came as waste from the beaters of gold, silver and bronze. These were cut by hand into fine clippings and then ground to powder in hand mills of simple construction. With the lapse of time and the spread of artistic industries the uses of bronze powder increased until the demand far outran the supply of waste, and the leaf metal is now made on a large scale.

The beating process flattens out a pound of copper and spelter alloy to an area of about 500 square feet, and in this condition the square sheets as they come from the brass envelopes are sheared into small fragments and rubbed with olive oil through a steel sieve having ten meshes to the inch and then passed to the stamping and grinding machines, where they are pulverized by steam or water power to the bronze powder of commerce. The grinding occupies from one to four hours, according to the grade or quality of the powder to be produced, which is of four grades, from coarse to superfine. The superfine oil is removed by heating under pressure, and the powder is then carried into centrifugal classifiers, or grading machines, which, turning at a high speed, expel the powder through fine orifices in the form of dust, which settles on inclosed shelves, according to weight and fineness, the finer particles at the top, the coarser below, and in this way the powder is divided into its various grades.—New York Press.

An Arctic Bill of Fare.

The Eskimos at home in their native frozen wilds do not believe in cooking. Their meat, be it seal, fish, venison, trout, salmon, whale blubber or codfish, they devour in its natural raw state and with the same gusto with which the average small boy tackles a watermelon. As for bread and vegetables, they have none. They set their seal oil lamps going, suspend a soapstone dish filled with snow over it, and with the water thus obtained they mix an equal quantity of molasses procured from the Hudson Bay company. That they drink and are happy. That is the sum total of an arctic cuisine.

Cases Postponed—The cases against Allen Hargraves in Justice McCarron's court were postponed until this afternoon.

Wants Money—L. S. Maple has entered suit in Justice McCarron's court against J. C. Blackburn. He claims $35 on a promissory note.

Will Enter the Races—William Humble left today with Robert L. for East Palestine, where the horse will be entered in the races Thursday.

Going to a Reunion—Justice Daniel McLane will leave tomorrow morning for Caldwell, where he will attend the reunion of the Seventy-eighth regiment, O. V. V. I.

Sewing Circle Meeting—The Ladies' Sewing Circle of the First Presbyterian church will meet tomorrow afternoon in the basement of the church. They will quilt a comfort as well as attend to special business.

Sues for Money—Albert Myler has brought suit in Justice McLane's court against Vern Calloway. The plaintiff seeks to recover $1.50, which he claims is due him from the defendant. The case will be tried this evening.

Case Dismissed—The assault and battery case brought in Justice McLane's court by William J. Alexander against John McLaughlin, and which was to have been tried today, has been dismissed. It was erroneously reported that the case had been brought against Thomas McLaughlin.

MILL SHUT DOWN

Cars Delayed on the Road Stop the Lisbon Tin Plant.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—(Special)—Eleven earloads of tin bars are lost, have strayed or been stolen between New Castle, Pa., and Lisbon. They were shipped last week to the tin mill here and have not been heard from. In consequence the mill was forced to shut down.

Manager Baldwin thinks the cars will be found today and the plant will be able to resume tonight or tomorrow. It has been idle since Saturday night.

At the Theater.

The Irene Myers Superb Stock company opened a week's engagement at the Grand opera house last evening by presenting "The Electrician." The play gave universal satisfaction and the high esteem with which this company is held was evidenced by the sale of tickets which began Friday. Standing room was at a premium before the curtain rose. Tonight the company presents a comedy drama in five acts, entitled "The Stowaway," with Irene Myers as the newsboy.

Escaped From Infirmary.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—Elisha French has escaped from the county infirmary and cannot be found. French has been an inmate of the institution for several years and this makes the third time he has escaped. He was sent there from Salem, but his parents reside in Belmont county.

On Trial for Murder.

Joseph Wilcoxon's Funeral.

The funeral of the late Joseph Wilcoxon, who died Sunday, took place at his late home in Madison township today.

SALEM CONVICT BADLY INJURED

Harry Kemp, Burglar, Meets With a Painful Accident in the Penitentiary.

TOPICS AT STATE CAPITAL

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, Oct. 1.—The Columbiana county prisoners at the penitentiary must have been born under an unusually unlucky star, as scarcely a week passes but one or more of them is overtaken by misfortune. The latest victim is Harry Kemp, colored, whose home is in Salem. He is employed in the stamping shop, and while working a die was painfully injured. He was using a steel punch which was broken by the machine, a fragment of the tool flying up and entering his neck dangerously near to the jugular vein. Kemp was hurried to the prison hospital and a probe inserted in the wound. The metal was found to be firmly embedded in the flesh, and as yet has not been removed.

Kemp was received at the penitentiary on May 15, 1901, to serve three years for burglary. If he does not violate any of the rules he can obtain his freedom at the expiration of his short term which will be July 26, 1903. Kemp was convicted of robbing the residence of Mrs. Furman Gee, at Lincoln avenue and Franklin street, Salem, last winter. An officer saw him leaving the premises and commanded him to halt. Instead of heeding Kemp darted down the street like a streak, but a bullet beat him out and bowled him over. The shot took effect in the heel. Kemp's conviction was easy.

State Librarian C. B. Galbreath has secured a large collection of anti-slavery papers during his incumbency and has just learned of the whereabouts of a large number of early newspapers that exerted a powerful influence against the institution of slavery when the fight against it was in its embryonic stages. These papers are in New Hampshire and Mr. Galbreath is confident he can secure possession of them. They will be added to the collection on file in the state library. Some of the strongest anti-slavery papers were published in Ohio, and not a few of these in Columbiana county. The Anti-Slavery Bugle, of Columbiana county, was one of the pioneer publications of the kind in the country, and wielded considerable influence.

Two loaded revolvers were found in the possession of a convict named Tom Carter, serving 20 years for manslaughter, in the penitentiary. Carter has been filling a clerkship in the office of Secretary Cook, of the penitentiary board of managers, and has always been looked upon as a "trustee." The discovery of the weapons is regarded as one of great importance and has doubtless been the means of saving the lives of one or more guards, for the reason that the guns would have been used by desperate prisoners in an attempt to effect an escape. A box of cartridges was found in Carter's cell. Carter has been reduced to the third grade, assessed 100 days good time and has been placed at hard manual labor.

Governor Shaw, of Iowa, one of the best campaign orators in the west, and a personal friend of Governor Nash, will spend a week in Ohio with the governor. They will speak from the same platform. Governor Shaw's services are in great demand all over the country. President Roosevelt, when vice president, accepted an invitation from the Republican committee to take a speaking part in the campaign in this state, but his accession to the exalted position of chief executive of the United States will, of course, prevent his appearance here.

As far as is known there is no record of a president ever having gone on the stump, and it is not expected that President Roosevelt will violate this precedent, which public sentiment holds should be immutable. The Democratic committee has formulated a list of Ohio speakers, which it hopes to press into commission this fall. The list includes the names General Isaac Sherwood, of Toledo, formerly of the Eighteenth district; Ex-Mayor E. H. Moore, of Youngstown, who has a reputation for spellbinding; Judge Abe Patrick, of New Philadelphia, and

Messrs. John C. Welty and James A. Rice, of Canton.

Defense of Huber Treffinger, Accused of Destroying Mail Boxes.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—(Special)—Ed F. Moore, of Lisbon, and John Patterson, a farmer near here, are at Cleveland today before the United States grand jury in the case of Huber Treffinger, charged with tearing down mail boxes.

Treffinger was arrested some time ago and placed under bond for the alleged offense. His side of the case puts him in a new light. It appears that he was acting under advice from a high source when he removed the mail boxes which had been placed by Patterson alongside the public road on Treffinger's land.

C. C. Connell, Treffinger's attorney, intimates that the defense has a card in its sleeve which it can depend on.

Two Families Depart From the City For a New Home.

The household goods of John H. Cook and L. C. Swank were yesterday shipped to Sweetwater, Tenn. Both gentlemen with their families left on the midnight train for Findlay, O., where they will visit for about three weeks. Leaving Findlay they will go direct to Sweetwater, where they intend to make their future home.

Mr. Swank will be accompanied by Ed Myers, a young lad who is homeless and who will reside with them. They have a large circle of friends. The Cartwright Bros., for whom Mr. Swank worked, together with the other employees, presented him a handsome dinner set yesterday morning.

Licensed to Marry.

Lisbon, Oct. 1.—(Special)—Frederick Miller, of Bayard, and Cassie Taylor, of East Rochester; Elmer D. Gaston and Katie L. Strasser, of East Liverpool, have been licensed to marry.

John C. Cole and Mrs. Cassie A. Wilson, of Yellow Creek township, have been granted a license.

Laying Gas Mains.

A large force of men is engaged in laying mains for the Ohio Valley company in Pleasant street. It is the intention to extend the lines on up the Lisbon road.

COUNTERFEIT GOLD

GILDING POWDERS ARE MADE OF COPPER AND SPELTER.

How many persons who see the shining gold in colored printing and on mirror and picture frames know that gold does not enter at all into the composition of the stuff that produces these golden effects?

The shining metallic effect is produced by a fine powder made from a mixture of bronze and spelter. This offers the cheapest and best means of giving the rich surface demanded in wall papers, printing, lithography, frescoing and in a vast range of manufactured articles of wood, paper and iron.

The material used is so called Dutch metal, an alloy of copper and spelter. The relative proportions are varied to produce different colors. The larger the percentage of spelter the lighter or more yellowish will be the tint of the alloy.

The copper and spelter are smelted in graphite crucibles containing about 400 pounds of metal, which, when completely fused, is run off into molds, forming half round ingots two feet long by half an inch in thickness. After cooling these are bound into bundles and sent to the rolling mill, where they are passed cold nine times through a double set of steel rolls under enormous pressure. This flattens them and draws them out into thin ribbons from 50 to 60 feet long and something more than one inch wide. Cold rolling under such extreme pressure makes the metal brittle, so it passes to the annealing furnace, which is heated by wood fire, as the sulphur in coal or coke would be injurious to the ribbons.

Having been softened and rendered ductile by annealing, they are cleaned in an acid bath, cut into lengths of about three feet and collected in bundles of 40 or 50 strips each. They are laid between sheets of zinc and passed under hammers which beat the metal strips to the thickness of tissue paper. This requires six successive beatings, and great skill must be exercised to produce a uniform and unbroken foil. After the third beating the metal strips are taken from between the sheets of zinc, loosened from each other and cleansed by immersion in a bath of tartrate of potassium. The cleaning is repeated after the last beating, and the sheets are hung on lines to dry. In the beginning the rolled strips are a dull gray metallic color, at the fourth beating the yellowish color begins to show, and after the sixth they are clear and bright as gold.

The defective leaves are then thrown out and the perfect ones cut into small squares, which are laid together by hand in packets of several hundred each and inclosed within an envelope of sheet brass. The packets return to the annealing furnace, where they are softened by heating and slow cooling, and then go to the beaters, where they are reduced under flattening hammers to the thinness of real gold leaf, so thin that it can be blown away by the breath.

The manufacture of bronze powder consists in grading, clipping and pulverizing the various bronze foils to an even, impalpable powder and is an industry of comparatively recent date. It began as a means of using up and utilizing the imperfect leaves which came as waste from the beaters of gold, silver and bronze. These were cut by hand into fine clippings and then ground to powder in hand mills of simple construction. With the lapse of time and the spread of artistic industries the uses of bronze powder increased until the demand far outran the supply of waste, and the leaf metal is now made on a large scale.

The beating process flattens out a pound of copper and spelter alloy to an area of about 500 square feet, and in this condition the square sheets as they come from the brass envelopes are sheared into small fragments and rubbed with olive oil through a steel sieve having ten meshes to the inch and then passed to the stamping and grinding machines, where they are pulverized by steam or water power to the bronze powder of commerce. The grinding occupies from one to four hours, according to the grade or quality of the powder to be produced, which is of four grades, from coarse to superfine. The superfine oil is removed by heating under pressure, and the powder is then carried into centrifugal classifiers, or grading machines, which, turning at a high speed, expel the powder through fine orifices in the form of dust, which settles on inclosed shelves, according to weight and fineness, the finer particles at the top, the coarser below, and in this way the powder is divided into its various grades.—New York Press.

An Arctic Bill of Fare.

The Eskimos at home in their native frozen wilds do not believe in cooking. Their meat, be it seal, fish, venison, trout, salmon, whale blubber or cod-fish, they devour in its natural raw state and with the same gusto with which the average small boy tackles a watermelon. As for bread and vegetables, they have none. They set their seal oil lamps going, suspend a soapstone dish filled with snow over it, and with the water thus obtained they mix an equal quantity of molasses procured from the Hudson Bay company. That they drink and are happy. That is the sum total of an arctic cuisine.
